

No more trade licence in residential areas

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

An inter-ministerial meeting yesterday decided that the government will not issue any new trade licences against addresses in Dhaka's residential areas.

The meeting also decided to remove all billboards that are hazardous to Dhaka city dwellers.

Another decision was to form a utility service commission comprising all utility service providers in Dhaka, to provide one-stop service to city dwellers.

The inter-ministerial meeting at the ministry of Local Government and Rural Development (LGRD) asked the Dhaka City Corporation (DCC) to prepare an annual plan of city-street-digging. The service

"She is ready to bring changes in the party constitution to ensure democracy within the party. But before that is done, some important leaders of the party might be fired as she thinks they are playing a mysterious role to serve their own interests," the source said.

Meanwhile, the persisting drama over Khaleda Zia's trip to Singapore, postponed once again on Wednesday due to filing of an extortion case against her younger son Arafat Rahman Koko, has created confusion and frustration among party men. Many district level leaders contacted senior leaders of the party yesterday but failed to get satisfactory explanations on the matter, party insiders said.

Moreover, party leaders were surprised that the case against Koko was filed just a few hours before his scheduled departure for Singapore with his mother. The CA made the remarks when new South Korean Ambassador in Dhaka Park Suk-bum paid a courtesy call on him at his office.

Appreciating the caretaker government's performance, particularly on reforms and anti-crime and anti-corruption drives, the envoy said South Korea fully supports its reform activities.

Both the chief adviser and the

yesterday strongly disagreed with the army assessment that simultaneous preparation of a voter list and national identity cards should not take more than six months.

It described the time frame as hypothetical.

A team of experts from the Bangladesh Army on Wednesday said the voter list with photographs and national ID cards could be prepared within up to six months since beginning of the task at the field level. It also gave journalists a demonstration of how the job would be done.

"It's not possible to complete the task in less than 18 months. The six-month time frame is mere notional," Humayun Kabir, the secretary to the EC Secretariat, told a weekly press briefing yesterday.

According to the commission, at least six months are needed for preparation including readying the project proposal and purchasing necessary equipment while 12 months for the field level work.

The EC secretary however said they have been seriously considering

8 MOST ESSENTIAL COMMODITIES 5 importers' cartel controls prices

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

A cartel of five importers, who control eight most essential commodities, have the ability to control the retail prices of these commodities, said a study conducted by the Centre for Policy Dialogue (CPD).

As the essential commodities have relatively inelastic demand, such cartels may get away with this restrictive business practice and make supernormal profit, it said.

Up to March of the current fiscal year (FY), the top five importers share of importing raw sugar is 96 per cent, refined sugar 46 per cent, crude soybean oil 67 per cent, crude palm oil 60 per cent, wheat 49 per cent, rice 37 per cent, lentil 31 per cent, and onion 31 per cent, the study revealed.

The existence of a higher degree of concentration in importing essential commodities gives rise to the possibility of syndication at importers' level, said the study.

The CPD recently conducted the study based on National Board
