

FIRST NAT'L HEALTH RIGHTS CONVENTION BEGINS

Poorer section deprived of health rights

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Though right to healthcare is fundamental to human rights, medical service in the country is so divided and captured by a group of people that the poor are often deprived of proper treatment, former adviser to the caretaker government (CG) Advocate Sultana Kamal said at the first National Health Rights Convention in the city yesterday.

"We are living in such a discriminatory society that there is actually no provision of getting free medical service for the poorer section," she said, adding that lack of seriousness on the part of the government is responsible for the situation.

Sultana said the poorer section of the country is much more deprived of their health rights and that raising awareness can play an important role in protecting the rights.

The convention was organised by Health Research and Rights Foundation and Population Services and Training Centre (PSTC) along with 52 other organisations working to protect people's health rights with the slogan 'Health is not an opportunity, it is people's rights and should be made available to all on the basis of equity.'

Supported by Manusher Jonno Foundation, the two-day convention began at Biam auditorium.

Chairman of the organising council Prof Rashid-E- Mahbub said a seven percent allocation of the total budget is quite negligible for health sector.

"The per capita health expenditure is only $4 in the country though we need at least $12," he said, adding that in Bangladesh health issue is yet to be established as a right and here people cannot ask for any justice or compensation for wrong treatment.

Farzana Naim of Manusher Jonno Foundation said, "If we analyse the mentality of health service providers, quality of service and condition of service recipients, we would find that we are talking about health rights only from welfare approach."

Presided over by Prof Nazmun Nahar, the inaugural session was also addressed by former vice-chancellor of Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujib Medical University Mahmud Hasan, Milon Bikash Pal of PSTC and Dr Nitai Kanti Das.

At the plenary session, Prof ABM Faroque of pharmacy department at Dhaka University, Advocate Rezwana Hasan, Abul Kalam Azad of Samajibi O Dustho Sangstha, Abdus Shakur of Governance Coalition, Dr Salima Rahman of RDRS Bangladesh and Aminur Rahman of Gono Unnayan Sangstha spoke on health policy, legal aspects, health education, mismanagement and suffering in public hospitals and different initiatives to protect the people's health rights.

Take steps to stop hill cutting, renovate Chaktai canal

Matin asks authorities

STAFF CORRESPONDENT, Ctg

Communications Adviser Major General (retd) MA Matin yesterday directed the authorities concerned to stop all sorts of hill cutting, and take measures to renovate the Chaktai canal to avert landslides and waterlogging in the port city.

"From now on all sorts of hill cutting will remain stopped," declared the adviser saying that the order will remain in force until a new environmental law is introduced.

He asked the local administration and all other authorities concerned to take care that no hill is levelled for the petty interest of any body.

The adviser said all the cases filed in connection with hill cutting would be revived.

He also expressed his surprise seeing the destruction of environment by the Chittagong City Corporation (CCC).

He was shocked to see that CCC, a government organisation responsible for planned urbanisation, was leveling hills by itself for implementing a housing project disregarding all urban provisions and turning the city into a mess.

"If I were not here, I could never know how CCC is devouring hills spreading over such a huge area to implement a housing project," said the adviser while visiting the project site at Kaibalyadham under Pahartali Police Station in the afternoon.

The adviser directed for stopping implementation of the project 'Lake City Housing Project' that CCC was developing by cutting hills spreading over 30 acres of land.

He also ordered for reviving and speeding up proceedings of the cases filed against CCC for plundering environment.

Earlier in the morning, the adviser visited the Chaktai Khal, the backbone of the sewerage system of the city, and saw the dilapidated condition of the canal that triggered unprecedented waterlogging and consequent inundation of the city on June 11.

Matin said he would discuss the issue with the chief adviser to take up a project to renovate Chaktai Khal and save Chittagong from waterlogging and inundation.

He said drives would start soon to demolish illegal structures and evict encroachers from both sides of the canal.

No disaggregated data on gender in budget

Gender experts tell seminar

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

There is no disaggregated data on gender in this year's budget, though the planning and finance adviser claimed it to be gender sensitive, speakers at a seminar said yesterday.

"The planning and finance minister claimed that due attention has been given to formulate a gender sensitive budget, but he has not clearly mentioned how many women will be enrolled or empowered and what percentage of maternal mortality rate will be reduced in this fiscal year", Dr Atiur Rahman said.

Dr Rahman also said South Africa is currently presenting gender sensitive budget, while India has added the 'Gender Statement', but in Bangladesh the budget does not even provide separate data on the basis of gender.

The seminar styled "Efficiency in Spending the Allocation for the Ministry of Women and Children Affairs (MOWCA)" was held at the National Press Club in the city.

Bangladesh Nari Progoti Sangha (BNPS) and Institute for Environment and Development (IED) jointly organised the seminar where researcher Dr Protima Paul Mojumdar presented her research findings. Rokeya Kabir presided over the programme.

Dr Paul showed why the allocation remains unused in the MOWCA and observed that women empowerment is not only dependent on budgetary allocation, but also on the merit of spending.

According to Dr Paul, dependency on foreign aid, want of skilled human resources and leadership, and the dissimilarities between objectives of national policy and the objectives of projects adopted in MOWCA are among the causes that hinder a wise spending of budget allocation.

She laid emphasis on thinking of projects like women entrepreneur development project or urban area based women development project.

Dr Mahmuda Islam, president of Women for Women, said the concerned officials should have been trained first so that they can properly use the allocation.

Former secretary and economist Dr Moshir Rahman, economist SA samad, Prof Jahanara Haque, Prof Montaj Latif, Dr Hannana Begum, Selina Khaleque, Tapati Saha and Dr Anwara Begum spoke on the occasion.

Altaf was arrested by Boalia police at around 1:00pm under section 16 (2) of the emergency ordinance.

Police said Altaf was the 22nd among the listed criminals of the city, an accused in 3 cases and 4 general diaries lodged with Boalia Police Station, including shooting present District BNP President Azizur Rahman during a meeting in 2005.

He amassed a huge amount of money after he was made a member of Rajshahi Development Authority's governing body.

Altaf also constructed two luxurious buildings in Dargahpara and Terokhadia areas encroaching portions of government roads.

He was still earning a handsome amount from the fifth floor of Sona Dighi market, also leased illegally at a lower rate.
