WC 2011 will be friendly

The South Asian nations hosting the 2011 Cricket World Cup promised on Monday to hold a spectator-friendly tournament with affordable ticket prices.

The pledge by India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Bangladesh comes after the 2007 edition held in the Caribbean was widely criticised for failing to draw crowds and for being too long.

"We promise a spectator- and media-friendly World Cup in four years time," said Sharad Pawar, chairman of the 2011 World Cup Organising Committee, after its meeting in this northern Pakistani hill resort on Monday.

"We will make unrelenting efforts to make the event a spectacular one so that more and more people come and watch the best cricket," said Pawar, also the president of the Board of Control for Cricket in India.

High-priced tickets ranging from 25 to 75 dollars hit attendance levels in the 2007 World Cup. Spectators were also barred from bringing in musical instruments until protests forced the organisers to relent.

The tournament was also hit by the death of Pakistan coach Bob Woolmer and initial police suspicions of murder. Jamaican authorities said last week he died of natural causes.

Pawar said he did not want to comment on whether there were lessons to be learnt from the Caribbean event, "but surely it's a pertinent issue and will be discussed at the ICC (International Cricket Council) meeting later this month."

"We assure that prices of the tickets will be affordable to the local paying capacity," said Pawar.

He said the committee was looking at common visas for India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Bangladesh, following a pattern established by Caribbean nations for this year's competition.

"The possibility of a common visa will also be explored through talks with governments," said Pawar.

The organisers said they would also think about changing the format of the competition, after the 2007 World Cup came under fire for being a marathon 47 days long.

"The format for the World Cup 2011 needs to be re-examined and will be discussed with the ICC," Pakistan Cricket Board chairman

BFF switches channel

SPORTS REPORTER

The Bangladesh Football Federation (BFF) yesterday signed a Memorandum of Understanding with satellite TV channel ATN Bangla in a bid to promote football.

ATN Bangla will BFF's partner in publicity and promotion of the game apart from telecasting live domestic and international matches.

The MoU also cancels BFF's deal with Channel i which was supposed to telecast at least 40 matches of the ongoing B. League live. Channel i, which beamed only six matches live, did not have a financial contract.

The MoU was signed by BFF general secretary Anwarul Hoque Helal and Nawajish Ali Khan, senior vice-president (programme) of Multi Media Production Company Ltd, on behalf of ATN Bangla at the BFF Bhaban.

An official contract is expected to be signed later.

Atapattu in for trouble

AFP, Colombo

Former Sri Lankan captain Marvan Atapattu could face disciplinary charges after refusing to play in next week's home Test series against Bangladesh, officials said on Monday.

Atapattu, 36, told Sri Lanka Cricket (SLC) last week he would not take part in the series after being recalled to the Test side for the first time since December 2005.

SLC secretary Kangadaran Mathivanan said disciplinary action could be taken against Atapattu if it was found he had violated his annual contract with the board.

"Marvan is contracted with the SLC and it is disappointing that he opted out of the series," Mathivanan told reporters here.

"We will study the contract to see if action can be taken against him."

Atapattu, who was replaced as captain by Mahela Jayawardene after being laid low by a recurring back injury, is currently in England playing for the celebrity Lashings World XI.

The top order batsman was included in the World Cup squad, but did not get to play a single match in the tournament where Sri Lanka reached the final.

Atapattu has scored 5,330 runs in 88 Tests with 16 hundreds. He was included for the Bangladesh series at the expense of another veteran Sanath Jayasuriya, who was rested.

The three-Test series against Bangladesh starts at the Sinhalese Sports Club ground here on June 25.

Vintage Alfaz act

SPORTS REPORTER

Alfaz Ahmed was inspirational in Muktiyoddha's 3-1 win over Rahmatganj with a goal of his own and assists for Saifur Rahman Moni and substitute Saiful Islam yesterday as the Reds took pole position in the B. League table.

Former national striker Alfaz, who opened the account with his sixth league goal after a scoreless first half, shaped Muktiyoddha's seventh win in 13 games to take their tally to 25 points, two ahead of joint-second Mohammedan, Sheikh Russel and Abahani.

For a revamped Rahmatganj, who reduced the arrears through Nigerian striker Nche Francis, it was the first defeat after two consecutive wins in the second leg. After 13 outings, they still remained at the base of the table with eight points.

However, the old-Dhaka outfit -- featuring four Nigerian recruits, fought neck and neck against Abu Yusuf's side who threatened to score after 13 minutes at the Bangabandhu National Stadium.

Alfaz, who scored the league's first hatrick, against the same opponents in a 4-1 first-leg victory, met a cross by Maitur Munna after 13 minutes but the veteran's shot near from the six-yard box was brilliantly parried by goalkeeper Anwar.

On loan from Mohammedan, Francis sliced the rival defence with a chipped pass over Muktiyoddha centre-backs Rajani and Ghansah six minutes later but Nigerian forward Ikogho, unchallenged near the penalty spot, saw his volley rebound off the underside of the crossbar.

Moni should have separated the two sides midway through the first half but the Muktiyoddha striker nodded the ball wide from a hand-shaking distance after Munna's left side centre found him in front of the open net.

Rahmatganj suffered a blow as their inform goalkeeper Anwar limped off the ground on the half hour to make way for Amjad, who was responsible for the side's collapse in the second half.

Francis kept the opposition backline under constant pressure but his hard work went in vain as midfielder Adeyinka and Ikogho fluffed easy chances inside two minutes.

Adeyinka was dispossessed inside the area after delaying a shot while Ikogho blasted his opportunity wide as the match went to the break.

Muktiyoddha switched to a flat four-back format at the break as fullback Titu came in for Moroccan midfielder Ibrahim and the gate opened seven minutes after resumption.

Rahmatganj captain Sony and his Nigerian central defence partner Felix hesitated to chase Moni's through pass and Alfaz had a free run down the middle to shoot past a wrong-footed Amjad.

Still smarting from the first goal, the Rahmatganj backs and Amjad were caught napping two minutes later when Alfaz dashed down the right to cross for Moni who nodded the ball into the near post to make it 2-0.

Francis then threw a lifeline to Rahmatganj with his second goal in three matches when the Nigerian chested down the ball and hampered a right footer into Titumir's left hand post after leftback Jahangir's centre from the left was flicked by Ikogho's header.

Alfaz forced a fine save by an otherwise sloppy Amjad before Saiful, who replaced Arman, neatly placed the ball home after a long pass by Alfaz four minutes from time.

By now Vaughan knows it

Cricket

AFP, Chester-Le-Street

England captain Michael Vaughan's future as a one-day international cricketer is due to be settled by a statement from the England and Wales Cricket Board (ECB) at Riverside here Monday after stumps on the fourth day of the fourth Test against West Indies.

Whether Vaughan should continue in one-day internationals has been a topic for discussion since England's poor showing at the recent World Cup.

Yorkshire batsman Vaughan, 32, has yet to score a century in his 86 one-day international appearances and, although England's most successful Test skipper has spoken out against a split captaincy, he has said he is unlikely to be available come the 2011 World Cup in Asia.

England are due to announce Friday their squad for the upcoming Twenty20 matches and three one-day internationals against West Indies.

Former England captain Nasser Hussain, replaced by Vaughan as one-day skipper after the 2003 World Cup in southern Africa, before Vaughan succeeded him as Test captain in the subsequent home season, told Sky Sports News on Monday: "I personally would like Michael Vaughan's body looked after."

"He has been an exceptional Test match captain but if he plays in all the one-dayers I don't think he will last.

All-rounder Paul Collingwood

has been touted as England's new one-day captain with star batsman Kevin Pietersen also mentioned as a possible successor to Vaughan in the shorter form of the game.

Hussain added: "England need to move in a positive and energetic direction in one-day cricket and I think Paul (Collingwood) would be a good choice."

Vaughan had led England in 60 one-day internationals, winning 32 and losing 22, but has struggled to convince as a top-order batsman with a meagre average of 27.15. By contrast, he averages 43.44 in Tests.

During the World Cup in the Caribbean, Vaughan scored just 130 runs in England's first eight matches of the tournament before hitting 79 in their final 'dead' fixture against hosts West Indies in Barbados where neither side had a chance of reaching the semi-finals.

Andrew Flintoff, currently injured, was stripped of the vice-captaincy after a late night drinking session following England's opening match defeat against New Zealand in St Lucia culminated in the all-rounder being found in a pedalo in the early hours of the subsequent morning.
