New Cambridge IGCSE in Bangladesh Studies launched

ANSAR AHMED ULLAH, London

New Cambridge IGCSEs in Bangladesh, Pakistan and India Studies were launched this week to mark the 250th anniversary of the Battle of Plassey at London's City Hall.

Nobel laureate Prof Amartya Sen addressed the event and took part in a panel discussion with historian and author Nick Robins, London Assembly Member Murad Qureshi and broadcaster Huma Price.

Chaired by Channel 4 News Business Editor Faisal Islam, the event brought together members of the Bangladeshi, Pakistani and Indian communities in London to look at how extremism can be addressed in South Asian Communities through education.

The new Cambridge IGCSE Bangladesh Studies syllabuses have been developed by the Cambridge International Examinations (CIE) in consultation with teachers in Bangladesh. They introduce students to the country's history, culture, geography, environment and development.

Students will learn about their rich heritage and cultural influences, and about events which have shaped national identity.

Through their studies, students will also gain a deeper understanding of underlying skills and concepts, and examine different interpretations of historical events.

The first examinations for Cambridge IGCSE Bangladesh Studies will take place next year.

Murad Qureshi said, "I strongly believe that offering pupils the opportunity to study these IGCSEs will help to strengthen community cohesion, tackle extremism in South Asian Communities and raise aspirations among the South Asian youngsters in the UK."

CIE's Chief Executive Ann Puntis said, "We would be delighted to make these Cambridge IGCSEs available to students in Bangladeshi, Indian and Pakistani communities here in the UK. Around the world, schools find that these subjects add something very valuable to the curriculum."

RU IRREGULARITIES

UGC begins probe

RU Correspondent

A probe body of University Grants Commission (UGC) yesterday began investigation into alleged irregularities, corruption and nepotism at Rajshahi University (RU) during the last five years.

Campus sources said the body took interview of many university officers and employees at the treasurer's room.

Earlier, the Progressive Teachers Society (PTS) denounced the probe body saying that there are allegations against the committee members who were appointed controversially during the tenure of BNP-Jamaat alliance government.

Meanwhile, Registrar Prof Abdus Salam has issued letters to all departments, institutions, hall provosts and deans asking them to inform the probe body of any irregularities or corruptions known to them.

But campus sources said many departments and offices did not receive any letter from the registrar as of writing this report.

For this reason, only some pro-

BNP-Jamaat officers and employees gave interview in front of the body, they added.

PTS Convener Prof Abdus Sobhan told newsmen that the probe body has not communicated with any of its teacher nor they received any letter from the registrar during the last five years.

When contacted, Vice-chancellor Prof Altaf Hossain said he will not make any comment on the investigation.

The five-member probe body led by Prof Mahabub Ullah came to RU to investigate the allegations made by pro-Awami League (AL) teachers against RU authorities for controversially recruited more than 500 teachers, officials and employees during the last BNP-Jamaat government.

The pro-AL teachers met the UGC chairman in Dhaka and demanded exemplary punishment to those involved in mass recruitment violating the University Act.

Israel detains key Hamas militant in West Bank

Israeli security forces detained a founding member of Hamas's military wing in the occupied West Bank in a pre-dawn raid yesterday, sources on both sides said.

"The occupation forces detained Sheikh Salah al-Aruri, 42, one of the founders of the Ezzedine al-Qassam Brigades in the West Bank, in a raid on his home in the village of Arura, north of Ramallah," the group said.

Several army vehicles entered the village at 2:30am and surrounded Aruri's home before detaining him, it said on its website.

An Israeli security source confirmed the arrest, describing Aruri as a "senior Hamas terror operative."

"Aruri is a senior active member of the organisation and is one of the leaders of Hamas in Judea and Samaria (the West Bank), in the prisons and abroad," the source said.

"During the time he served in prison, he was one of the few leaders of the Hamas organisation in the prisons."

Tearful Hindus pray for return to Indian Kashmir

AFP, Tumulta

Under tight security thousands of Hindus who fled a Muslim insurgency in Indian Kashmir's summer capital offered prayers yesterday at a revered temple many had not worshipped at for decades.

With flower petals in their hands and tears flowing down their cheeks families gathered at the Kheer Bhawani temple in Tumulta, 30 kilometres (20 miles) northeast of Srinagar in a Muslim-dominated section of the state.

An estimated 200,000 Hindus fled the Kashmir Valley where Srinagar is located after the insurgency erupted in 1989 and settled in the southern part of the state, known as Jammu and India.

"I had never imagined my homeland is so beautiful," said Sunita Koul, 16, who lives in a two-room hut in Jammu.

"I have been told we had a big house in Srinagar that is no more there," she said, as she showered flower petals and milk at Hindu gods inside the temple.

Her father, who asked not to be named, said their house was set on fire two years after they left Srinagar.

"With a broken heart, I have prayed for our return to our homeland. We want to die here," he said, as police ushered visitors to the temple through metal detectors.

Some Muslim Kashmiri separatist politicians have urged Kashmiri Hindus, known popularly as Pandits, to return.

However, most of them have sold off property or lost it to arson though some say they would like to rebuild as they were welcomed at the shrine by Muslims in the area.

"We want to come and live among our Muslim neighbours," says Bimla Handoo, a retired school teacher. "I have prayed for our union with our neighbours. My house is in bad shape but we will renovate it if we move back," she said.

12 rescued from ship stranded off India's coast

AFP, New Delhi

The Indian coast guard yesterday rescued 12 of two dozen crew members on a sinking cargo vessel stranded in the Arabian Sea off the west coast of India, the local maritime rescue centre said.

The vessel, buffeted by rough weather, ran aground and tilted yesterday morning off the coast of India's southwestern Karnataka state, raising fears that it could sink. "So far, 12 crew members have been brought back. The rescue operation is still going on," said Ram Kumar Navik, a radio operator at the maritime rescue centre in the harbour city of Mangalore, which is close to the accident site.

The ship was carrying 7,500 metric tonnes (8,250 short tons) of black sand, the centre said.
