STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Foreign Affairs Adviser Iftekhar Ahmed Chowdhury yesterday condemned the Saturday's terrorist attack on Glasgow airport in the UK as an 'act of cowardice'.

He is currently in Geneva to attend a high-level ministerial conference of the UN Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC).

"It is an act of cowardice which all of us condemn," said Iftekhar in London, en route to the Geneva conference.

"All the members of the British-Bangladeshi community are deeply law-abiding and I know they join me in the hope and call for peace, calm and stability in this and every other society," he said in a press release issued from the Bangladesh High Commission in London.

He also said the government looks forward to working closely with the new British Prime Minister Gordon Brown and his cabinet.

"As is evident, these are difficult times and it is absolutely essential that our two countries, who share such common values, must coordinate over global activities to ensure a more secure and peaceful world," he added.

He hoped for a greater focus from the new government on poverty alleviation and development, as well as working through the United Nations, which he said would be helped by the appointment of former United Nations Deputy Secretary General Mark Malloch Brown to the post of State Minister for Foreign Affairs.

In Geneva, Iftekhar Chowdhury met UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon and invited him to visit Bangladesh.

He also met Secretary general of UNCTAD Supachai Panitchpakdi and urged his organisation to help train Bangladeshi officials in trade negotiations and help bring more investment to the country.

"We have achieved a high level of social and political stability in Bangladesh now, and conditions are most appropriate for greater foreign investment. UNCTAD can help us achieve this, and the Secretary General assured me it would," said the foreign adviser to the media after the meeting.

Iftekhar is due to present a report on Bangladesh's development success stories at the ECOSOC conference currently in session in Geneva.

35 hurt in clash with cops in Kashmir

AFF, Srinagar

Thirty-five people were hurt yesterday when thousands of villagers chanting, "Death to killers," clashed with police in revolt-hit Indian Kashmir, accusing them of gunning down innocent civilians.

The demonstrations came as police continued to probe five cases elsewhere in the state in which innocent civilians were detained, killed and passed off as Islamic militants by security forces seeking cash rewards and promotions.

The new clashes, which left 15 policemen and 20 civilians hurt, erupted in Kupwara town, 100 kilometers (62 miles) north of Srinagar, the summer capital of Indian Kashmir where an Islamic separatist insurgency has raged since 1989.

"We've requisitioned more policemen to quell the protest," a senior police officer Vijay Kumar said as police fired shots in the air, used teargas and charged at the protesters with batons.

The clashes, in which over 3,000 villagers chanted, "We want justice," and stoned government buildings, broke out after four people died in police firing last Thursday.

Police said three of the dead were militant suspects who were shot as they were about to storm an army camp and that the fourth, a woman, was caught in the crossfire.

However, the villagers maintained all four were innocent. They said the three men were shot in cold blood by police and accused the police of killing the woman as she was a witness to the deaths.

Separatists and several pro-India political parties have urged the government to probe the incident.

"The three were killed in a fake gunbattle. The woman was shot dead as she was a witness to the killings by police," said Bashir Ahmed, the president of the Kupwara lawyers' group.

HOUSEWIFE SHASHI MURDER Family demands proper investigation

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Family members of slain housewife Farjana Jahan Shashi yesterday demanded that the murder case be transferred to the Criminal Investigation Department (CID) for proper investigation into the murder and arrest of her killers.

Shashi was a victim of a pre-planned murder, they said and accused her husband engineer Hasnat Reza and in-laws of their involvement in the murder.

Shashi, also a student of Home Economics College, was slaughtered at her husband's rented flat at Purbo Kafrul in the city on June 4 and local people caught domestic help Majnu Miah, 18, when he tried to dump the body at Dhaka Udyan Housing at Mohammadpur.

At a press conference yesterday, Shashi's father Shahjahan Miah alleged that the investigation officer, Sub-Inspector Alamgir Kabir, had played a dubious role in handling the case by not conducting proper investigation.

He said that although Majnu told the police that another person named Sajib was also involved in the murder, the police did not take it into account and mentioned the name of Majnu in the case as the only accused.

When contacted, SI Alamgir Kabir denied the allegations and said Majnu had cited the name of an imaginary person 'Sajib' only to save himself.

The SI also said Majnu had confessed to the police that he himself committed the murder, which was also corroborated by the evidence gathered by the police.

Shashi's family members also claimed that it was not possible for one person to slaughter a woman, destroy the evidence, wrap the body in a sack and take it to Mohammadpur from Kafrul by a rickshaw just within two hours.

"If the CID investigates the murder case, we are hopeful that the real perpetrators will soon be identified," Shahjahan Miah said.

He also said that his family came to know after the murder of Shashi that Majnu is a cousin of Hasnat Reza, which aroused their suspicion that her husband might also be involved in the murder.

UN offers Pakistan aid as 600 die in South Asia rains

AFF, Islamabad

The United Nations and other agencies offered aid and helicopters to Pakistan yesterday after floods unleashed by a cyclone and days of torrential rain devastated 1.5 million people.

More than 600 have been killed across South Asia as the annual summer monsoon brings downpours and extreme weather, with at least 117 deaths in southwestern Pakistan during the past week.

Swathes of the normally desert Pakistani province of Baluchistan remain under water following the impact of Cyclone Yemyin last Tuesday plus heavy weekend monsoon rains.

Foreign Office spokeswoman Tasnim Aslam said Pakistan had not sought international help but that the UN had offered helicopters and medicines.

"We have been approached by a number of countries, the UN particularly, regarding the kind of assistance that we require in the relief efforts," Aslam told a weekly briefing.

The last time Pakistan needed international aid was during the October 2005 South Asian earthquake, which killed 73,000 people and left more than three million homeless.

Helicopters were still plucking cyclone survivors from their rooftops or dropping food to cut-off mud-brick villages on Monday, while other victims are living in camps, television footage showed.

Prime Minister Shaukat Aziz was quoted by state media after a trip to the disaster zone on Sunday as inviting international agencies and foreign countries to help the relief effort.

Provincial relief commissioner Khuda Bakhsh Baloch said flash floods at the weekend in Baluchistan's Khuzdar area killed at least 35 people, while other bodies had been found, bringing the toll for the week to at least 110.

More than 200,000 are homeless while 1.5 million were affected, he said.
