northumbria UNIVERSITY
great learning great experience great future
Studying for the Northumbria Open Learning LLB in Bangladesh
In Bangladesh today students wish to join the many people throughout the world who undertake the LLB Open Learning programme of Northumbria University as distance learning students and, if successful, often choose to do professional law examinations and go into practice as a Barrister or Attorney.
Students have studied the Northumbria University LLB in Bangladesh from the late 1990s and there is a growing group of graduates. Students:
▪ register directly with Northumbria University;
▪ follow the Northumbria University syllabus for each subject;
▪ receive a range of learning resources – in print and online;
▪ sit examinations at Northumbria University approved examination centres (in Bangladesh at the British Council);
▪ are assessed wholly by Northumbria University examiners;
▪ have their degree classification determined solely by Northumbria University; and ▪ receive their diploma or degree directly from Northumbria University.
Successful students gain the same award as those who study full-time at Northumbria University.
Many open learning students study on their own but the majority of students follow a course of lectures at one of the many tutorial colleges that offer lectures and other guidance for Northumbria open learning students. In Dhaka there are for example:
▪ London College of Legal Studies
▪ Newcastle Law Academy
These institutions are not private universities, nor are they branch campuses of Northumbria University. They are best conceived of as tuition support centres since they play no role of setting the syllabuses, learning objectives or mode of assessment. They do not participate in the assessment or in the determination of students' classification. All such matters are wholly the responsibility of Northumbria University.
These institutions can play an important facilitative role in supporting the student learning experience. They provide opportunities for contact with tutors, they provide lectures and seminars and additional books to those supplied by Northumbria University. Importantly, they provide the opportunity for student to get peer group support, in other words a community of other students for students to interact with.
Northumbria University was voted the 'Best New University 2005' in The Times Good University Guide. The School of Law at Northumbria University is the largest Law Department in the North of England. It is renowned for providing excellent legal education and offers the most comprehensive portfolio of programmes at both undergraduate and postgraduate levels. From September 2007 the School of Law will be located in a new, purpose built £100m (One Hundred Million Pound Sterling) facility in central Newcastle. This new building will contain state of the art teaching and learning facilities, with lecture theatres and workshop rooms equipped with the latest technology.
Specific information on Law at Northumbria University can be found on the University web page for Law at <http://northumbria.ac.uk/sd/academic/law/>.
