

Cyber-policing system a must to prevent crime

Say experts

BSS, Dhaka

The country needs a strong cyber-policing system to adopt newer technologies and prevent cyber-related crimes that sometimes pose threat to national interests, experts said.

They told BSS yesterday that Bangladesh, which is moving satisfactorily towards utilising latest technologies in encouraging investment in education, infrastructure and poverty reduction, might fall in the ensnare of cyber crimes unless proper monitoring system is introduced with the support of latest equipment.

They said the law enforcement agencies looking at national interest and security found that the criminals, in the absence of proper monitoring, blasted bombs at 503 places of the country at a time on August 17 in 2005 by using the latest technology.

The agencies also found that the whole operation was planned, coordinated and implemented through cellphone network.

The experts pointed out that all the countries of the world developed the vigilance system whenever they have adopted new technologies.

All the developed countries, including the USA, the UK, Germany, France and Australia, have strong cyber-policing system to prevent the criminals in doing harm to the people by using the latest technology.

There are many international bodies, including the US-based Communication Assistance to Law Enforcing Agencies and the Europe-based European Telecommunication Standard Institute, which formulate and help implement regulations in this regard, the experts said.

They said Bangladesh is lagging behind in the context of checking cyber crimes compared to the neighbouring countries like India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Singapore.

During the past years other than amending some laws, Bangladesh has not taken any strong action to curb cyber crimes, the experts said, adding the initiatives taken to strengthen vigilance against cyber crimes in the country are not satisfactory.

They said the smugglers are using mobile phones to monitor the movements of BDR patrol to commit their crimes.

The experts said the enactment of Telecommunication Law-2001 was a step towards curbing cyber crimes but because of the vested quarters, the law could not be implemented properly.

They are of the opinion that people involved in cyber crimes can only be taken to task by empowering the authorities concerned for checking the cyber crimes.

The BTRC has to play a strong role in curbing cyber crimes as people of the country are in favour of bringing cyber criminals to book before they commit crimes like serial bombing, smuggling out national resources and extortion.

Harassment of cultural activists at RU protested

RU CORRESPONDENT

Sammlito Sangskritik Jote of Rajshahi University (RU) protested the harassment of cultural activists by police and university authorities yesterday.

In a statement, the jote leaders alleged that the activists of Anushilin Drama Group and Tirthok Drama Group were harassed when they were returning to their dormitories along with their female activists singing song in group.

Police also picked up some cultural activists and released them later, they added.

Sayem, an activist of Anushilin, said it is their tradition to help female activists return to their dormitories singing in groups.

When contacted, university Proctor Enamul Haque said some unruly students create chaos on the campus in the name of cultural activities.

So restriction has been enforced on the return of the cultural activists to their dormitories singing in groups owing to state of emergency.

CMC students demand immediate exams

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Chittagong

Over hundred MBBS students of 45th and 47th batches of Chittagong Medical College (CMC) brought out a silent procession on the campus yesterday demanding the authorities should hold the supplement examinations, previously scheduled to begin on July 1, immediately.

Later, the students held a press conference at CMC canteen where they said that around 118 students, who failed in the first and second professional examinations in last January, had options to make amends in the supplement examinations scheduled to start on July 1.

But Chittagong University (CU), authority of different medical colleges in the region, postponed the examinations due to a case filed by a private medical college in this connection, they added.

Earlier, the CU authorities refused to take exams of BGC Trust Medical College on charges of having inadequate accommodation system and structural imbalance.

BGC Trust authorities filed a case with the High Court against the CU decision in June this year prompting the CU authorities to postpone all the first and second professional examinations scheduled to start on July 1 until the case is solved.

Around 200 examinees of first and second professional examinations of different government and private medical colleges under Chittagong University now run the risk of losing a year from their academic career, the students said.

Acting Principal of CMC Prof Dr Nilkanta Bhattacharjee, however, said the authorities can only wait for the verdict at this moment.

Buddhist devotees crowd at a temple in the port city to see the hair relics of Gautam Buddha yesterday.

Ashari Purnima celebrated in Chittagong

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Ctg

Ashari Purnima, a religious festival of Buddhists, was celebrated through a daylong programme at different monasteries of the port city yesterday with due enthusiasm.

Hundreds of Buddhist devotees gathered at Chittagong Buddhist Monastery, Katalganj Nabapandit Bihar, Devpahar International Buddhist Monastery, Mogaltuli Shakyamuni Bihar and other monasteries to offer special prayer seeking peace, progress and prosperity of the country.

Bangladesh Buddhist Association arranged an exhibition of different relics of Lord Buddha including his hair, bone and footprint preserved in Chittagong Buddhist Monastery.

Mentionable, hair relic of Gautam Buddha was handed over to the representatives of Sri Lankan government at a ceremony at the monastery on July 18, when Sri Lankan Foreign Minister Rohita Bogollagama also handed over a footprint of Buddha as a gift.

A huge crowd was seen at Chittagong Buddhist Monastery at Nandankanon since morning to have a look on the relics and offer prayer.

Association President Ajit Ranjan Barua said they usually arrange the exhibition for only once in a year on the occasion of Buddha Purnima.

But as many devotees who could not see the footprint of Buddha earlier, had requested us to make an arrangement to show the same on the occasion of Ashari Purnima, he added.

Body of youth found floating in Isamati

A CORRESPONDENT, Benapole

The body of an unidentified youth was found floating in the river Isamati near Agrobhulot border in Benapole yesterday afternoon.

Police and witnesses suspect the victim, aged around 35, was attacked by criminals and robbed of his belongings while he was coming to Bangladesh from India illegally.

Goga Union Parishad Chairman Abu Murtaza said since no one is sure whether the deceased is a Bangladeshi or an Indian, none is going to recover the body.

'Formulate policy on refugee issue'

A daylong training programme on 'Refugee Law', jointly organised by Bangladesh Legal Aid and Services Trust (BLAST) and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), was held in Chittagong on Saturday, says a press release.

The participants placed some recommendations including formulation of a comprehensive policy on asylum and refugee issues, accession to the Refugee Convention and its Protocol and adoption of a national legislation on asylum and refugees.

They also called for capacity building of officials of the government and NGOs working in the refugee operation, better treatment for the asylum seekers and refugees, and continuous support from international community for refugee operation.

AKM Anwar Hossain, metropolitan sessions judge of Chittagong, was present at the inaugural session as the chief guest.

Prof Zakir Hossain, dean, law faculty, University of Chittagong, Tslimur Rahman, executive director, BLAST, Adv Rezaul Karim Chowdhury, Coordinator of BLAST's Chittagong Unit, and Dr Uttam Kumar Das, national protection officer, UNHCR Bangladesh, attended the session presided over by Advocate Abdul Quddus, president of Chittagong District Bar Association.

Prof Zakir Hossain, Taslimur Rahman and Dr Uttam Kumar Das conducted different sessions.

Some 45 representatives from the bar association, academic institutes and NGOs took part in the training programme.

UNDP project to ensure 'Justice for All'

With the vision of strengthening mechanisms for promotion and protection of human rights and the delivery of 'Justice of all', the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) has initiated a new technical assistance project called 'Promoting access to justice and human rights in Bangladesh' with the Ministry of Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs, says a press release.

This project initially aims to mobilise $3 million as an integral part of cooperation between the Government of Bangladesh and UNDP in the area of democratic governance, human rights and access to justice, which particularly aims to strengthen the ability of the poor and other disadvantaged persons to demand and obtain justice by asserting human rights and statutory entitlements.

This project, therefore, aims to institutionalise human rights principles and standards, through the establishment of a national human rights commission, and advance prospects for access to justice for the weakest victims of injustice, through strategic interventions involving the judiciary, law officers, the legal profession, and civil society organisations responsive to the voices of the poor.

In doing so, the project will provide support to processes initiated by the government to establish a human rights commission, separate judiciary from executive, and it will focus on issues relating capacity development of the judiciary, law officers, legal profession, legal aid authority, and civil society groups working on human rights and accesstojustice.

Another notable emphasis in this project is on gender justice through focus on international norms and sensitisation of justice sector personnel to their duties to ensure adherence principles of non-discrimination, equality and participation when women are claimants of rights, and adopt proactive approaches to combating gender-based violence.

Maj Gen Roshde new envoy to Myanmar

Cop, 2 aides arrested on charge of cheating

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

A police constable and his two associates were arrested at Shialbari in the city's Mirpur area in the early hours of yesterday on charges of cheating.

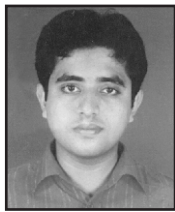

The arrestees were identified as Shimul Khan, a constable of Rajarbagh Police Lines, and his associates Jahid alias Rony and Pintu.

Alamgir Hossain, a cameraman of local commercial video shop NS Multi Media, filed a case with Shahali Police Station on July 20 accusing the three of snatching a video and a still camera and other equipment worth about Tk 3.25 lakh.

Police said on July 3, Shimul called the Paltan office of NS Multi Media and asked the office staff to send a cameraman with a video and a still camera with three people he would send.

As per his demand, NS Multi Media officials sent cameraman Alamgir with the three people. As they reached Mirpur Mazar Road in a hired taxi-cab, the three asked Alamgir to buy a video film. As he got down to buy the film, they left the place hurriedly. Although Shimul denied snatching the cameras, police arrested them with the snatched video camera and other equipment following an investigation.

Appeal for help

Kamal Uddin, a bright student of Chittagong University, has been suffering from cancer since 2005, says a press release.

He fell ill when he was taking preparation for his final examination.

Despite being struck down by the disease, he secured first class in his masters examination.

Kamal was feeling well after taking treatment from Thakurpukur Cancer Hospital but he relapsed a few days back.

Doctors said he needs immediate treatment which will involve an amount of about Tk 20 lakh.

But his father, who is a retired shipping officer, is unable to manage such a huge amount of money.

So he has made a fervent appeal to the well-off people of the society for financial help to save the life of his son.

Contributions can be sent to Nurul Huda, Account No SB 34009904, Standard Bank, Jubilee Road Branch, Chittagong.

Interested persons can also contact him over cell phone no 01813-388391.

Workshop on UK visa Aug 16 in Ctg

BSS, Chittagong

The British High Commission in Dhaka will arrange a workshop on 'Easy UK visa procedure' on August 16 in the port city with a view to informing people about the UK visa system and other procedures.

Second Secretary of the UK High Commission Ian Pugh Cook said this when he called on Acting Mayor of the Chittagong City Corporation (CCC) M Manjur Alam at the latter's office, said a press release.

Ian Pugh Cook apprised the mayor of the purposes for organising the workshop as the UK visa applicants from this region are still less than the other areas of the country.

He said from now onwards the people of greater Chittagong need not go to Dhaka for applying and obtaining UK visas.

The CCC acting mayor urged the UK envoy to make the visa procedures simpler so that financially less-affluent but meritorious students could apply and obtain UK visas for their higher studies, the release said.

The mayor assured the UK envoy of all possible cooperation in this regard.

CCC Chief Executive Officer Intiaz Hossain Chowdhury, officials of the UK High Commission in Dhaka Tanjiba Moyeen and Shah Jalaluddin were present at the meeting.
