

Formulate common code of conduct for journos

Kathmandu seminar urges Saarc Info Centre

JASIM UDDIN KHAN, back from Kathmandu, Nepal

A three-day seminar on Saarc development goals ended in Kathmandu on July 27 with a call to formulate a common code of conduct for media persons, including verification of information on cross-border issues.

The Saarc Information Centre (SIC) in coordination with the Saarc Secretariat should take steps to formulate the code of conduct with a view to checking ghost and imaginary reports on cross-border issues, media persons from the Saarc countries told the seminar.

They also suggested that the SIC should facilitate broadcasting and publishing reports related to Saarc development goals/ Millennium Development Goals in the South Asian media, reflecting the best practices in each member state.

These recommendations were adopted at the seminar for media people, organised by the Saarc (South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation) Information Centre.

Nepal's Minister for Information and Communications Krishna Bahadur Mahara inaugurated the seminar titled 'Saarc Development Goals (SDGs) in Relation to Millennium Development Goals (MDGs)' on July 25.

Mukunda Prasad Acharya, director general of SIC, conducted the seminar while Krishna R Khadka, director of Nepal Administrative Staff College, was the resource person.

The seminar also stressed the need to give special attention to the empowerment of women as part of the SDGs.

The SIC should regularly organise seminars/capacity building training for journalists on development issues, the participants said.

They also suggested that the SIC in cooperation with the Saarc Secretariat should facilitate the travel of journalists within the Saarc region.

They recommended that the SIC should play the role of the facilitator for promoting free flow of information through collaboration among the media houses and increasing intra-regional investment in the media sector.

The participants suggested that an 'SDG Journalists' Forum' should be formed to campaign for the achievement of the SDGs in the region.

They also urged the SIC to compile news reports and articles on SDGs and post them on the SIC website regularly and bring out a quarterly bulletin.

BADSHAH MURDER

5 teachers arrested

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Police yesterday arrested five teachers of E Haq Coaching Centre in the city suspecting their link to the killing of their colleague Abul Bashir Badshah on July 26.

The arrestees are Mahmudul Hasan, Jasimuddin, Zahirul Islam, Moshir Rahman Apu and Aminul Islam Liton.

They have however denied their involvement in the murder.

Police said they made the arrests after slain Badshah's wife Taslima Begum told them that Faruq, younger brother of the coaching centre's owner Emadul Haq, and some teachers loyal to him (Faruq) might have killed her husband.

Police produced the arrestees before the Chief Metropolitan Magistrate's Court that placed them on a three-day remand.

Taslima also told the police that on many occasions her husband had told her that Faruq and teachers loyal to him might even kill him as they cannot embezzle the fund of the coaching centre due to his stand.

She said Faruq also asked her husband not to come to the coaching centre.

When Badshah informed Emadul of the matter, he asked him to continue, said the police quoting Taslima.

She also alleged that Faruq and some teachers of the coaching centre have been threatening her with dire consequences if she comes to Dhaka and tell anything about them to police.

"We have detained the five teachers after the slain teacher's wife told us that Faruq and the teachers might have hands in the killing," said the Officer-in-Charge (OC) of Dhanmondi Police Station Monwar Hossain while talking to The Daily Star.

The OC said they have also launched a drive to arrest Faruq, but could not nab him.

Unidentified criminals gunned down Badshah, a teacher of general mathematics, at E Haq Coaching Centre at Kalabagan.

Meanwhile, Emadul Haq has told the police that his youngest son-in-law, with whom they have no more relation, might have link to the killing.

The Dhanmondi OC said they are also hunting for the man.
