

Benazir won't be deported, but has to stand trial

AP, AFP, Islamabad

Former premier Benazir Bhutto can return to Pakistan from exile but will have to face corruption cases against her, the government said, as her party announced her arrival date yesterday.

Benazir will return home from self-imposed exile on October 18, her party said Friday.

Benazir has been in talks with embattled military ruler President Pervez Musharraf on a possible power-sharing deal ahead of crunch general and presidential elections in the coming months.

Benazir would not be deported in the manner of another former premier, Nawaz Sharif, a government spokesman said. Sharif was expelled hours after he flew in on Monday.

That action sidelined Musharraf's chief political rival while underlining the general's willingness to take authoritarian steps to

"I am giving this good news to the people that she is arriving on the 18th of October and will land in Karachi," Fahim said to cheers from supporters and a barrage of firecrackers.

Earlier Pakistani newspapers cited unnamed party sources as saying Benazir would come back in late October while Britain's Sky News television said Friday that Benazir would return on October 23 or 24, citing unidentified sources.

In an interview Friday, Deputy Information Minister Tariq Azim drew a clear distinction between the rights of Sharif and Benazir to return to Pakistan.

"Nawaz Sharif's case was different. He went back to Saudi Arabia because of an undertaking he had with the Saudi government," Azim told The Associated Press. "She (Benazir) was always allowed to come back."

Asked about pending corruption cases against Benazir, he added:

"It's for the law to take its own course. Everybody has to face cases against them and the same applies to her."

Azim said the talks with Benazir were continuing, but sticking points remained, including her desire for the corruption cases to be closed, her seeking a constitutional amendment to let her seek a third term as prime minister, and over the president's re-election.

"The talks are continuing but not at the same pace we might have wished. It's in the national interest for a resolution between political leaders to be reached. But it should be in the national interest, not in the personal interest of anyone," Azim said.

Benazir has led her party from London and Dubai after leaving Pakistan in 1999 over the corruption allegations. Her party said it would announce her return date at simultaneous press conferences at key Pakistan cities Friday afternoon.

AMMO SEIZURE Russell Sangma remanded

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Mymensingh

Russell Sangma, arrested in connection with the seizure of around 29,100 pistol bullets from Bakakura village in Jhenaigati upazila of Sherpur district on Thursday, was placed on a five-day remand yesterday.

Police produced the indigenous youth before the First Class Magistrate Court, Sherpur, in the afternoon with a remand prayer for seven days. But the court granted five days' remand.

Bangladesh Rifles (BDR) recovered the bullets from the house of Sangma in the early hours Thursday. Acting on a tip-off, a special squad of BDR, led by 45 Battalion Sector Commander Colonel Anisuzzaman, raided the

BANGLADESH FACE HOSTS TONIGHT Australia, Sri Lanka romp to win

SPORTS REPORTER

Australia confirmed their place in the next round after crushing England by eight wickets at Newlands in Durban while at Johannesburg, Sri Lanka started their ICC Twenty20 World Championships campaign with a gigantic 172 runs win over Kenya yesterday.

Desperate for a win, the mighty Australians produced an emphatic performance, bowling out England for 135 and then racing to victory in only 14.5 overs. The victory meant that both team qualify but Zimbabwe, the other side in Group D, were eliminated by virtue of inferior net run-rate.

Sri Lanka posted 260-6 for the highest score in this format and then dismantled Kenya for only 88.

Meanwhile, Bangladesh are bubbling with confidence as they face hosts South Africa at Newlands in Cape Town today with the glorious memory of their victory against West Indies on their mind.

The match will begin at 10pm
