On the 14th of August Banglalink sponsored the International Coastal Cleanup 2007 in Bangladesh. It was truly a day to remember as everyone from little children to adults came together to clean Cox's Bazar. the event started at 10:00 in the morning as all the volunteers lined up for the customary photo shoot. It was an amazing mix of individuals from first graders to senior men from the Department of Environment. After the cameras finished their work then came a small procession from the beach front on to the main beach itself. It was a stiflingly hot day but the brave volunteers kept their cool throughout it all. Just when one though the pictures were over everyone had to set up for one last group picture to be taken on the beach, it turned out to be worth the weight as the picture was brilliant. Next it was down to the nitty gritty of the cleaning the coast, which in this case happened erful beaches of Cox's Bazar. All the ed plastic bags a r g do their work. I of sh and
