9 dead in Myanmar as troops open fire

Thousands keep up protests defying junta retaliation

AFP, Yangon

Security forces swept through Yangon's city centre yesterday, arresting hundreds of people and warning of "extreme" action in a crackdown on protesters who took to the streets in their thousands.

Nine people, including eight protesters and a Japanese man, were killed Thursday in a crackdown on anti-government protests, Myanmar's state media said.

Another 11 demonstrators were injured including one woman, and 31 security forces were also injured, it said in an evening television bulletin.

"The protesters threw bricks, sticks and knives at the security forces, so because of the desperate situation the security forces had to fire warning shots," it said.

Undeterred by the deaths, large crowds faced off against troops and police around the Buddhist Sule pagoda in downtown Yangon.

After earlier firing warning shots, troops issued an ultimatum threatening "extreme action" unless the protesters dispersed.

Thousands scattered in panic but at least 100 were arrested and thrown into military trucks after the fire warning shots," it said.

Musharraf files nomination for Oct 6 presidential polls

AFP, Islamabad

Pakistani President Pervez Musharraf yesterday formally applied to run in the October 6 presidential polls, in a bid for five more years of power that could yet be derailed by the Supreme Court.

Two opposition candidates also filed nomination papers to stand against Musharraf -- a key US ally who seized power in a 1999 coup -- saying that he cannot be re-elected while he remains army chief.

Prime Minister Shaukat Aziz and several cabinet ministers swept up to the election commission in Islamabad in a convoy of black limousines to lodge the nomination on behalf of Musharraf.

Hundreds of riot police and commandos were deployed around the building and at the Supreme Court across the road to guard against protests by the opposition and all key roads were sealed off.

The government has defied international condemnation and detained hundreds of opposition workers in raids, which started at the weekend to thwart planned demonstrations.

"Today is a historic day for Pakistan," Aziz told state television.

"This election will strengthen democracy and is in the interest of the nation. The government will take every step to ensure a free, fair and transparent election," he said.
