Optical fibre cable stolen again

Tele-link thru' submarine cable disrupted

UNB, Cox's Bazar

Telecommunication with 22 countries and internet service were hampered for seven hours from 10:00pm Wednesday as criminals cut submarine cable here.

A police patrol team caught three people red handed while they were stealing optical fibre wire from two feet below the ground at Uttar Harbang in Chakoria upazila.

The criminals began cutting the optical fibre line at about 10:00pm on Wednesday and nearly completed the lifting wires at about 4:00am when law enforcers chased them, said Officer-in-Charge of Chakoria Police Station Ruhul Amin Siddiqui.

Three criminals -- Sabir Ahmed, 38, Ahmad Hossain, 35, and Mahbubul Haque, 21, all from Villagepara in Chakoria -- were arrested along with cables and wire cutting tools.

The submarine optical fibre line, opened in May last year, was brought up to Chittagong under the seabed from Cox's Bazar for better telecommunications and internet services.

TIB terms NGOs mid-level corrupt

Suggests forming independent NGO Commission

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Transparency International Bangladesh (TIB) has termed the NGOs of the country a mid-level corrupt sector and recommended forming an independent NGO commission to oversee their activities.

In a study titled 'Problems in good governance in the NGO sector: The way forward' released yesterday, the TIB noted lack of transparency and accountability in the sector as well as serious irregularities in their dealings.

TIB Research Officer Sadhan Kumar Das presented the study at a discussion at Cirdap auditorium in the capital. TIB Trustee Board Chairman Professor Muzaffer Ahmed presided over the discussion.

The study took into account the activities of 20 NGOs operating in different districts in six divisions in the country. Of them, one is an international NGO, eight are national NGOs and 11 are local NGOs.

The study observed that many NGOs are registered with the government in exchange of bribes and some of those have existence only in paper and the government officials assist them in the process.

The NGO Affairs Bureau Director Salauddin Ali present at the meeting, however, disagreed with the study insisting that these are "sweeping allegations," adding that allegations should be specific, if any.

The range of corruption, however, could not be assessed as the NGOs did not provide TIB with adequate information and the NGO chiefs did not cooperate properly, the study said.

"Due to lack of transparency and autocratic attitude of the NGO chiefs, an environment is created where corrupt practices become obvious. They are not accountable to the beneficiaries, rather to the donors," TIB Trustee Board Chairman Professor Muzaffer Ahmed said.

Noting that access to information from the NGOs was very difficult, Professor Muzaffer said that those who had information were not willing to talk or said that they did not have time.

A kind of centralisation has been found in the sector where the donors maintain relationships with the big NGOs, which are to assist the small ones. There are only a few NGOs that receive 90 percent of the resources from the donors, Professor Muzaffer said.

"We have to think how far this practice of corporate NGOs is justified," TIB Trustee Board chairman said cautioning that involving politics with rights-based activities of the NGOs may bring about dangerous result.

The study found that NGO

Benazir upbeat over power-sharing deal

Asks Musharraf to quit army before polls

AFP, London

Former Pakistani premier Benazir Bhutto said yesterday she was "optimistic" about a power-sharing deal with President Pervez Musharraf and hinted she would not obstruct his re-election bid this weekend.

The two-time prime minister said nothing had yet been finalised on a so-called national reconciliation agreement that would grant her an amnesty on the corruption charges that drove her into exile eight years ago.

But she appeared to back down from an earlier threat that MPs from her Pakistan People's Party would resign from parliament, a move that would have robbed Saturday's presidential election of any semblance of credibility.

The Pakistani government also

Rival Korean leaders issue peace call
Sign historic summit agreement

AFP, Pyongyang

The North and South Korean leaders called yesterday for a nuclear-free peninsula and a permanent peace pact to end the world's last cold war divide as they wrapped up a rare summit.

The historic foes agreed to step up trade, travel and political exchanges, including starting a freight train between the impoverished communist North and prosperous South and flights for the growing number of South Korean tourists.

North Korea's reclusive leader Kim Jong-il, dressed in his trademark khaki jumpsuit, smiled, shook hands and clinked champagne glasses with President Roh Moo-Hyun, only the second South Korean leader ever to visit Pyongyang.

The two leaders, closing the three-day summit, signed an agreement pledging to work for a permanent peace between the two Koreas, which remain technically at war after their 1950-53 war halted with only an armistice.

"The South and North will not take a hostile stance towards each other and will reduce military tension and resolve issues of conflict through dialogue and negotiation," the joint declaration said.
