

Samsung G800 with 5 Megapixel Camera and Video Editing Functions

With a five-megapixel camera, 3x optical zoom, Xenon flash, face detection and WDR (Wide Dynamic Range) technology, as well as the ability to take panoramic shots, multi shots and macro shots the Samsung's G800 multimedia cell phone is being marketed as the photographer's choice of cellphone. And moviemakers will be happy with the G800 as well, as professional video editing functions are also on offer, and there are mobile blogging functions, meaning you can upload content onto your website super-fast as the cell supports HSDPA. It has a 2.4" 262K QVGA TFT LCD and measures 101 x 51.1 x 18.8 mm

Nissan X-Trail Branded Laptop from NEC

"I found a solution to your spam problem.
I've set up your e-mail to automatically delete any message with a vowel in it."

Car manufacturers lending their names to gadgets seems to be the latest trend, and NEC and Nissan's X-Trail-branded laptops are the newest of the lot. Basically an NEC LaVie G Type J with a rust-colored jacket whose panels might just remind you of a car and with a few X-Trail logos scattered over the place, it is priced at an outrageous $2,115 (BDT 148,050)!

Compiled by Mahdin Mahboob