Philosophy of Life, Philosophy for Life

7-14

When the first cave-man in prehistoric gloom looked at the vast sky in utter surprise and wondered aloud "What is my position in the vastness," philosophy forthwith bloomed into existence. His surprise was supplemented by other questions like "What is this vastness that I see around? Where have I come from and where shall I go to? Why am I in the place where I am now?"

Thoughts

It's pretty simple. I have seen that people seem to have all the time for all the things, which are not necessary, but they never do, or want to give time to themselves. This is however not very unexpected because the more you think; the more you know, and the more you know; the more you understand, and the more you understand; the more you want to know, and the more you want to know; the more problems arise.

Valentine's Day Wish

Star Campus wishes all its valued readers, writers and contributors a very happy and prosperous Valentine's Day. Valentine's Day is meant to rediscover your commitment to your friendship and love and perhaps be a little more expressive than any other day. Some might also say that they do not believe in one special day for love, but let this work as a stepping-stone for world peace and harmony.
