A Place to Call Home

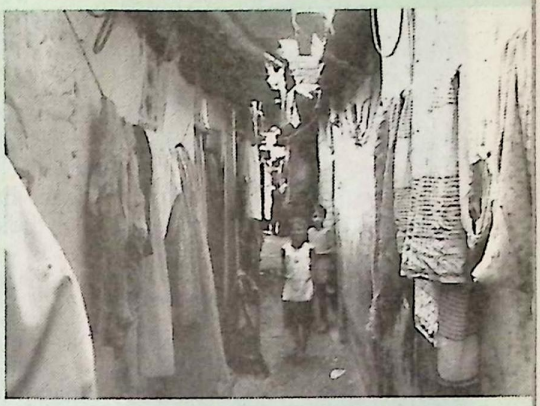

A young girl writes a poem where she asks a simple question -- one which no one can answer. She asks, "Who am I?" Her forefathers were born in India, they immigrated to Pakistan, she was born in Bangladesh. India has given up on them a long time back, Bangladesh will not accept them as the children of the land and Pakistan will not take them back. She says that she has many names 'Bihari', 'Maura', 'Muhajir', 'Non-Bangalee', 'Marwari', 'Urdu-speaker', 'Refugee', and 'Stranded Pakistani'. But she only wants one: human. This is the state of being of the 1.6 lakh camp-based Urdu-speaking community in Bangladesh.

Cover Design: Manan Murshed

Star inside

- Letters 2
- Voicebox 4
- Chintito 5
- Newsnotes 7
- Interview 16
  Finding the Centre
- Straight Talk 20
  Reading between the Lines
- Books 22
  Newcomers Who Made Waves
- Special Feature 24
  Breaking Ships Broken Hearts
- Travel 27
  Amazing Nepal
- Culture 29
  Breaking Barriers
- Human Rights 30
  Towards a Child-Friendly Society
- Sport 32
  One Step Forward and Half a Step Back
- Writing the Wrong 34
  Detachment, Part Three, the Healthy Diva in Me
- A Roman Column 36
  The Song of the Writer
- Venture 38
  An Online Connection
- Remembrance 40
  Debuda- The Fairy Tale Prince
- Event 43
  For the Love of the Language
- Dhaka Diary 44
- Book Review 45
- Comics 46
  Laily
- Globetrotter 48