JS seats for indigenous women demanded

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Mymensingh

Indigenous people should not be looked in isolation from the mainstream population, identifying them as Adivasi, speakers said at a seminar here yesterday.

Indigenous people, especially women, should give equal rights at all levels, they said at the seminar on Indigenous Women: Role of Local Media, organised by Mass-Line Media Center (MMC). It was held at CARTAS regional office.

The speakers included Dr. Marufi Khan, Principal of Shaheed Syed Nazrul Islam College; Prof. Lila Roy and MMC programme officer Md.

Mubarak Hossain, Rakhi Mrong, an indigenous journalist presented the key-note paper.

The speakers raised their voice against what they called deprivation of indigenous women. Voice of indigenous women are seldom heard as they are not at all involved in politics at any level, they said.

Speakers representing indigenous women urged the authorities to give them constitutional rights and demanded reserved seats in parliament for indigenous women.

They said the media can play a vital role in solving indigenous people's problems prevailing for decades.

The seminar was followed by an open discussion session.
