

AUTISTIC CHILDREN'S WELFARE FOUNDATION

Coming to aid of autistic children

NUR UDDIN ALAMGIR

Autistic Children's Welfare Foundation that started its journey at a three-storey building in the port city in October last year has expanded its activities in the capital on April 11 in an effort to provide support to the autistic children.

Its activities started temporarily at a building of Chittagong City Corporation (CCC) at Mirzapole in the port city to help the autistic children lead a normal life amid manifold problems.

The Foundation, a non-profit organisation, is now taking care of 28 autistic children under the supervision of 22 teachers, three parent teachers and two helping hands, sources said.

Success in the endeavour has inspired the organisation to launch its branch at Mirpur-12 in the capital on April 11, said

Foundation Director (Admn) Lt Col Tofael.

While visiting the foundation office at Mirzapole on Thursday, all the teachers and staffs were seen busy in guiding the autistic children on all the floors of the building with patience and tenderness.

Foundation Principal Tahmina Zarin said the autistic children come here with multiple problems like belated development of speaking ability, stereotyped or repetitive use of language, little or no eye contact, lack of interests in relationships, persistent preoccupation with parts of objects and inflexible adherence to specific and non-functional routines or habits.

Besides, they usually are habituated to avoiding crowd or interaction that force us to engage one teacher for one child and use separate and rare training equipments and therapy, which are expensive, she said.

"The teachers here are to show patience and serve with motherly love as these children need special care," she said.

Child Specialist Dr Basana Muhuri, a life member of the foundation and mother of an autistic child, said the building is small and congested.

"In fact, more space and further improved atmosphere are required to provide proper support to the autistic children and bring change in their behaviour," she said.

She said number of patients are increasing everyday, but the foundation is not able to provide them treatment properly while some so-called autistic centres are just cashing on the situation and making money in the name of training and rehabilitation.

She said she visits the foundation every Saturday and train the teachers and mothers with her experiences. She said children develop autism genetically while abnormal formation of brain and some other abnormal chemical activities in brain are responsible for this.

She waved aside link of love or care with the development of autism while emphasising specialised training, education and rehabilitation to help such children lead a life like other normal children.

Referring to the service at the foundation, General Secretary Mahbubul Haque Khan said they receive only Tk 56,000 from 28 students as fees a month against the expenditure of around Tk 1.58 lakh.

He said they are unable to accommodate more autistic children here since the foundation runs in a building that we are bound to vacate at any time if CCC wants. "But, we are under pressure to increase number of children and their facilities" he added.

Mahbubul said the Foundation runs on donation on different organisations and individuals. He said it needs its own land, modern equipment, specialised training for the teachers and government patronisation for its smooth functioning.

Muggers reign in port city again

SHAHIDUL ISLAM

Muggers in Chittagong have made a fearsome comeback in the last few days after letup between October 2007 and February 2008, much to the anguish and anger of the city dwellers.

The muggers robbed business men, a college student and a journalist in a span of only seven days until Monday. Of the incidents, one was gruesome that shook the entire city and its people in complete horror during the period - the murder of a young madrasa student on April 5 night.

What was most appalling for Chittagong people was the fact that the killing took place in Jamal Khan area under Kotwali Police Station where a patrol team of police is always seen and on that night the on-duty cops did virtually nothing to prevent the mugging leading to the murder or chase the killers.

"I just can't believe that Jewel would no more be alive in a stroke of few seconds," Saadi burst into tears while reacting to the murder of his close friend.

Police could not arrest any of the killers until filing of this story on Monday afternoon.

Astaul Hakim, former president of Chittagong Press Club (CPC), was fortunate enough to be unharmed, albeit he was robbed of cash and kind at broad day light on April 3.

A gang of four muggers intercepted his rickshaw while he was returning to his home at Nasirabad from the CPC, in front of a refuelling station near District SP Office at Nasirabad Road at around 1:30pm.

"One of the muggers identified himself as top-notch Islami Chhatra Shibir cadre Sajjad Khan and ordered me to give everything I have. Fearing physical attack I instantly gave them my mobile set and Tk 1,000 but they became angry and asked for more. Then I gave them Tk 4,000 more I had in my another pocket," Hakim said.

Chandrapur.

They got separated at the Jamal Khan Intersection at around 10:30pm. As Jewel approached only few metres, a gang of three muggers on board a CNG auto-rickshaw intercepted him. They snatched his Nokia N73 mobile set. The muggers stabbed Jewel indiscriminately and shot when he tried to resist them.

Hearing a hue and cry, Saadi rushed to the scene only to see his friend lying unconscious. Jewel succumbed to his injuries on the way to Chittagong Medical College Hospital (CMCH).

Hakim said the office of the district police super is just 15 metres off the mugging spot. He said this incident in fact proves how hapless the innocent city dwellers are.

Lipi Nath, a student of Chittagong College, was another victim of muggers in the busy college road area on April 5 morning. Two muggers in a motorcycle snatched a Nokia N Series mobile set from her, who was on a rickshaw, and ran away. Many pedestrians and commuters saw the incident but none of them came forward.

A gang of four miscreants on March 30 mugged Jewel Rana, a soldier of 24 Infantry Division, at around 8:30pm at Olonkar Intersection under Pahartali Police Station. They took away his mobile set, ID card and Tk 16,000 in cash. The joy of the muggers, however, was short-lived this time as on-duty police reacted promptly and arrested all the four miscreants in less than two hours with the booty.

On March 29, businessman Jafar Sadeq came under attack of the muggers at Momin Road in the afternoon. The gang stabbed him before fleeing the scene.

The Chittagong Metropolitan Police (CMP) in September last year detected 14 ringleaders, including four CNG-run auto-rickshaw drivers, and arrested 12 of them. The actions had brought some relief and sense of security among the city dwellers.

But the criminals began to reign in again to rob of the sleep of the city dwellers due to the laxity of the law enforcement agencies these days.
