10th Calligraphy Exhibition at Shilpakala

Calligraphies on display at National Art Gallery

ERSHAD KAMOL
 For the 10th consecutive time, Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy and Sahitya Sanskritik Kendra have jointly organised a calligraphy exhibition. The 10th Calligraphy Exhibition was inaugurated on June 15. The exhibition will continue till June 30 at the National Art Gallery of Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy. Artists in different mediums such as painting, drawing, mixed media, oriental, digital printmaking, woodcut, terracotta, gauche, installation and marble have presented the Holy Names and Holy Verses as done by the traditional Islamic calligraphers. Most of the calligraphers have followed popular Tughra style (composition of compressed long alphabets). As done by the modern calligraphers in Iran, many artists have presented the Arabic words in forms of man and natural elements such as flowers. In case of presenting the latter style, the artists have used vibrant colours. Moreover, a few artists have presented images of spirituality through compositions of alphabets. Only a few of the calligraphies portray Bangla alphabets. Bhashkar Rasha in his woodcut has portrayed alphabets, one each from different languages like Bangla, Arabic, Sanskrit, Greek and Japanese. One hundred and forty calligraphies -- of 37 artists including Dr. Abdus Sattar, Bhashkar Rasha, Sabin Ul Alam, A.H.M. Bashir Ullah, Ahmed Newaz, Professor Mir M. Rezaul Karim, Forej Ali, Ibrahim Mondol, Jahangir Hossain, M. Moniruzzaman, Mahbob Murshed, Ferdous Ara Ahmed, Ferdousy Begum, Sharmila Quader, and Nahid Rokshana -- are on display. The exhibition however, is not well organised. Credits are not mentioned with the works.

"Viva La Vida or Death and All His Friends": Coldplay's latest album

After three albums of exposing vulnerability over soft piano chords, Coldplay opts for clutter and disguise, opening and closing on shimmering notes that give "Viva la Vida" a sense of book-like construction, one chapter dissolving into another. The previous efforts, to extend the metaphor, have been collections of stories; "Viva" is a chance to stray, to add layers and textures that in some cases enhance the storyteller or the story, and in others smother the words, usually with melody.

It's a daring move for Coldplay, the British band led by Chris Martin whose leadership has seemingly been turned over to the producers Markus Dravs, Brian Eno and Rik Simpson. The palette is extended considerably since 2005's "X&Y," although the territory ventured into seems like nothing new from Dravs, who has worked with Arcade Fire and James, or Eno, whose U2 connection will undoubtedly be blamed/praised for the results here.

"Viva la Vida" is executed on a grand scale, the layers of instrumentation suggesting an enormous ensemble, Group handclaps and a church organ, an orchestra, which can bite or tenderly hug depending on the mood, and, in the opening instrumental, a merging of the organic (hammered dulcimers and such) and the electronic that sets the table for the rest of the album.

"Strawberry Swing" is the closest the album comes to having a traditional pop single, but even that requires an embracing of Coldplay as a band capable of stepping away from earnest balladry.

Martin, whose voice sits atop only two or three songs and is mostly in the middle of the mix, has moved into exploring mortality ("42" and "Violet Hill"); the distinction between emotions that are active yet not permanent in "Lost"; and good old-fashioned lust augmented by a Middle Eastern hook in "Yes."

Then there's the closer "Death and All His Friends," the most calming of all the tunes in which Martin projects a reassuring presence, offering a hug and simple words.

Time will be the judge on whether this experiment works. It is not a timid album and as most bands of their calibre figure out how to compete on a song by song basis, they have at least provided a 45 minute block of music to become engrossed in.
