

USTC encroaches on Pahartali Baddhyabhumhi

Authorities say allegation is to tarnish image of the university and its vice chancellor

DWAIPAYAN BARUA

A private university is constructing an academic building on the land of Pahartali Baddhyabhumhi, the largest mass killing ground of the War of Liberation in the port city.

University of Science and Technology Chittagong (USTC) has already set up iron framed structures to construct the building ignoring resentment among the people.

Different political and cultural organisations and professional organisations continued agitation against construction of the building.

They sought interference of the chief adviser as well as the army chief in the matter to preserve the historic site.

The protesters urged the government to take immediate measures to stop encroachment on the land to protect the memory of the War of Liberation.

They also demanded proper investigation into the corruption during the BNP-led alliance government in cancellation of a project in this regard.

Refuting the allegation of encroachment on the land of Pahartali Baddhyabhumhi, USTC Director (Academy) Dr Jalal Uddin said they have bought the land legally. He said the agitation is a part of an intentional move to tarnish image of the institute and its Vice Chancellor National Professor Dr Nurul Islam.

Pakistani occupation army and their collaborators use to take the freedom loving people to the spot near Foy's Lake at Pahartali in the port city and killed them during the War of Liberation.

The most tragic incident occurred when Pakistani army killed several thousand unarmed people of the adjoining railway colonies and others on November 10 in 1971.

Prof Dr Gazi Salehuddin, coordinator of Ekattor Baddhyabhumhi Smriti Sangrakshan O Bastobayan Parishad and also a resident of the area, said non-Bengali, people popularly known as Biharis, of Pahartali was angry on the Bangladeshes as they played active role in different political and cultural movements during the pre-liberation period.

A riot ensued between the Bangladeshes and the Biharis on March 3 over removal of a signboard written in Urdu of a shop by the local students, he added.

Witnesses said Pakistani forces became mad when they were facing strong resistance by the freedom fighters across the country.

They said four unidentified dead bodies were found at a hilly spot near the present Pahartali Eye Hospital on the night of November 9.

On the following day Pakistani army, members of AL Badr, AL Shams and Shanti Committee called hundreds of local residents of Wireless Colony, Master Lane, Shaheed Lane, Goanese Quarter, Punjabi lane, Firoj Shah Colony and Sarapara out of their houses and took them to Baddhyabhumhi to recognise the bodies.

The occupation forces asked them to line up at gunpoint and slaughtered and shot them as they failed to recognise the bodies.

Gazi Kamaluddin, brother of Dr Salehuddin, said he was also taken with his uncle Ali Hossain and others to the place.

Kamaluddin, a five-year-old boy in 1971, said he managed to escape while his father Ali Karim, a railway staff, and uncle did not return.

While narrating the incident, he said before slaughtering them the killers tied the eyes and hands of many victims from back. The miscreants stabbed the victims indiscriminately and dumped some bodies underground while some were burnt spraying gunpowder and petrol, the witness said.

The murderers also forced many passengers of Chittagong-Nazirhat and Chittagong-Dohazari trains to get down for killing at the nearby rail track, they witnesses said.

No step was taken to preserve the site by the governments before the Awami League government in 1999 took initiative in this regard.

Earlier in 1998 a team led by Prof Salehuddin met the then prime minister Sheikh Hasina and urged to her to preserve it.

Cultural ministry allocated Tk 94 lakh to acquire 1.754 acres of land the following year after Hasina's order in this regard.

But the USTC authorities said they have procured the land from its owner in 2002 and filed a case against the notice of acquiring the land by the government.

They said the university authorities managed the higher authorities in the four-party alliance government of the ministries concerned to stop the acquisition of the land.

Later, the Ministry of Liberation War Affairs ordered the district administration to refund the money back in May in 2006, sources at the district administration said.

Additional Deputy Commissioner (Land/Acquisition) Tajul Islam confirmed about the allocation and refund of the money.

He said the ministry ordered to refund the money in 2006 as the USTC authorities donated some 11 kathas of land to it after a negotiation.

A memorial was set up in a casual manner on the donated land beside the actual spot without any background history, said Kamrul Islam Badal, secretary of Sangrakshan Parishad.

Dr Jalal said the university has donated the land showing respect to the martyrs and the ministry received it as the legal owner.

Leaders of the Parishad questioned legality of cancelling the project taken by the AL government for preserving the killing ground. Expressing her resentment over the negligence of the government in this regard, Begum Mushtari Shafi, wife of a martyr and coordinator of Ghatat Dalal Nirmul Committee Chittagong, demanded preservation of all the liberation war mass killing fields throughout the country and an end to encroachment on these sites.

Potholes add to woes of commuters

SHAHIDUL ISLAM

With the onset of monsoon, potholes and cracks have been developing further in addition to the already dilapidated condition of roads in the port city, increasing the sufferings to the commuters as well as the residents.

Lack of proper maintenance and coordination among the Chittagong City Corporation (CCC), Chittagong Development Authority (CDA) and other authorities concerned are aggravating the situation.

The city roads that now are lying in a most miserable condition are Nawab Sirajuddowla Road (Anderkilla to Chawkbazar and Kapasgola), Badrutala Road (Kapasgola to Bohaddharhat), KB Abdus Sattar Road (Rahmatganj to Gani Bakery adjacent to Chandanpura), Momin Road (Cheragi Pahar to Enayet Bazar Intersection), Bohaddharhat Intersection, Muradpur Road, Bibirhat Road (Muradpur to Aturer Depot), Dewanhat DT Road (Dewanhat Overbridge to Pahartali and Halishahar Blocks), Paltan Road, KB Fazlul Quader Road (Chawkbazar to Chittagong Medical College and Prabartok Intersection), Pathantuli Road, Dhanialapara Road, Kadamtali Road (Kadamtali to East Madarbari), Strand Road (Sadarghat to West Madarbari and Barik Building Intersection), Ice Factory Road (West Madarbari to City College), Chittagong College Road (Gani Bakery to Chawkbazar), DC Road (West Bakalia), KB Aman Ali Road, Ali Ashraf Road (Kotwali Thana Intersection to Patharghata) and Firingi Bazar Road.

Heavy monsoon shower last week caused developing of many more potholes and cracks in most of these roads. As a result, commuters especially the rickshaw, autorickshaw and tempo passengers are to bear the brunt of heavy jerking alongside unwanted damage to the vehicles, alleged the commuters and the drivers.

Of the roads, the one-and-a-half-kilometre Nawab Sirajuddowla Road (Anderkilla to Chawkbazar and Kapasgola), one of the oldest thoroughfares in the port city, is now in most pitiable state. The road remained uncared for months since a massive eviction drive by the CDA began in February in 2006. The road appears as a nightmare to both the commuters and pedestrians with multiple cracks and frightening holes.

Although a Tk 24 crore post-eviction development work began early last year, the people of this area are deprived of any benefit since the work was progressing at snail's pace. Worst more, a large portion of the road stretching from Anderkilla to Dewan Bazar Sub Area has gradually turned into a kitchen market of vegetables, fishes, meats and other essentials.

"We have on many occasions urged the authorities to intensify the work so that our woes would come down as early as possible. But all our appeals so far went in vain," said ward commissioner Chowdhury Hasan Mahmud Hasni.

He said they were told that CDA work would be completed in two years ending February, 2009 but are now sceptical about this probability.

"I used to drive my autorickshaw on this road (Sirajuddowla Road) to save time and fuel. But nowadays I do use this road very rarely because of potholes and cracks," said Kajal Das, a driver.

On the other hand, passengers very often receive severe injuries in waist, back and shoulder while commuting through aforesaid worn out roads.

Gafur Mia, a retired railway official at West Madarbari, said the Kadamtali and Strand roads have been lying uncared for over a decade, making these roads one of the most vulnerable to commuters.

The dilapidated roads are causing minor road accidents frequently, raising the risk of major accidents at any time as well, said Mohammad Ali Mia, deputy commissioner (traffic) of Chittagong Metropolitan Police (CMP).

He said unplanned digging by the CCC, CDA, BTB and other bodies is another main reason to make worse the condition of the city roads.

CCC Chief Engineer Nizamuddin Chowdhury said

Vegetables vendors occupy a portion of Nawab Sirajuddowla Road, causing suffering to pedestrians.

the Asian Development Bank (ADB) has recently assured them of a grant of over Tk100 crore for developing new roads and renovating the existing ones.

He said they will be able to start work with the fund soon. On the other hand, CDA officials said the development or repair work of the roads couldn't be started fully due to fund constraints.
