Bangladeshi documentary "The Winner" wins international accolade

CULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

The Winner, a documentary produced by Impress Telefilm Ltd, has been named the best children's documentary in South Asia at the 'International Children's Day of Broadcasting Award' by UNICEF. With this achievement, The Winner will also compete at the approaching Emmy Awards, which will be held in New York in the second week of November.

The documentary has been directed by Fahmidul Islam Shantanu. Shantanu was inspired to make the documentary on the growing awareness about autism. The documentary aims at generating awareness on this disorder in our country. According to him, film is the best medium to reach the masses.

Sabina Yasmin in Eid-special "Ityadi"

The video of the song features differently-abled individuals with Sabina Yasmin.

CULTURAL CORRESPONDENT

The variety show Ityadi is considered a special programme on Eid to the TV audience in our country. A special performance by Sabina Yasmin certainly adds to the appeal of the programme. Over the years, the diva has performed on every Eid-special Ityadi. This year's Eid-special is no exception.

The song performed by Sabina for the special episode of Ityadi has been penned by noted lyricist Mohammad Rafiquzzaman and composed by Ali Akbar Rupa, a regular on the show. The video of the song bears significance as nearly a thousand differently-abled people have appeared with Sabina.

Ityadi is written, planned and hosted by Hanif Sanket. Ityadi will be aired on the second day of Eid on Bangladesh Television after the 8 pm news. Keya Cosmetics Ltd. is the sponsor of the programme.

"The Duchess": A visual feast

Princess Diana's antecedent, both genetically and figuratively, was a beautiful and glamorous duchess named Georgiana Spencer. Like her descendant, her charm and vivacity apparently captivated England.

Had paparazzi existed in the late 18th century, their lenses would doubtless have been trained on her. Her story is entertainingly and sumptuously told in "The Duchess". This star-studded film has grand production values. The cinematography is stunning, with gorgeous costumes and a sweeping score. All of this is capped by compelling key performances.

The best of the group is Ralph Fiennes as William Cavendish, the taciturn and womanising Duke of Devonshire. He is a complex character, not very likable, but as played by Fiennes, deeply intriguing. Keira Knightley plays the duchess winningly with a convincing zest for life. "Pride & Prejudice" established her talents as a period-piece heroine, and she seems the ideal choice for the clever fashionista character. Dominic Cooper ("Mamma Mia!") is appropriately cast as her passionate swain.

The duke is persuaded by Georgiana's upwardly mobile mother (a formidable Charlotte Rampling) to marry her spirited and cultured 17-year-old, the daughter of the first Earl of

Spencer. Georgiana quickly adapts to life as a royal and charms the more worldly courtiers with her wit and beauty, as well as her ability to discuss politics and gamble as a man would. In addition to being adored by the masses, according to this tale, Georgiana is instrumental in effecting change in the Whig Party.

The more the public fawns over his wife, the more distant the duke grows, publicly taking a live-in lover (Hayley Atwell). Frustrated by her husband's inattention, Georgiana falls into the arms of a handsome childhood friend (Cooper), now a politician.

Though it does have occasional elements of a bodice-ripper romance, the engaging story is distinguished by sharp writing and strong acting. This is a highbrow and elegant chick flick that outstrips other insipid movies targeted to women.

"The Duchess" explores the nature of celebrity and charisma. Most compellingly, it chronicles the saga of a vibrant and forward-thinking woman hampered by the constraints of a rigid society.
