

Students smash shop windows during a violent demonstration on the 40th anniversary of the massacre of Tlatelolco, at the Plaza de las Tres Culturas, in Mexico City, on October 2, 2008. Thousands of Mexicans marched through the capital in memory of scores killed in a bloody student massacre there 40 years ago, in yet another call for justice. As student movements shook the world in 1968, Mexican security forces killed between 44 and 300 protesters in Tlatelolco, 10 days ahead of the Mexican Olympic Games, and rapidly cleared up the evidence.

In this undated handout picture released by Reliance, Indian industrialist Anil Ambani (2R) poses with US cinema director Steven Spielberg (L) and Dreamworks executives Stacey Snider and David Geffen at an undisclosed location. A joint venture between India's Reliance ADA Group and Steven Spielberg's DreamWorks studio will start up by January 2009, and make up to 35 movies over five years, a source close to the Indian company said. Indian billionaire industrialist Anil Ambani met with Spielberg in Los Angeles to finalise details of the new film company which will be headed by current Dreamworks chief executive Stacey Snider, the source said.

Men walk in a flooded street in the Gaba suburb in the Algerian town of Ghardaia. The death toll in flash floods in the historic Algerian town climbed to 33, as aid workers battled to help hundreds of homeless and the army was deployed to prevent looting, state radio said.

Ukrainians and foreign residents shout slogans during an anti-racism rally in front of the Ukrainian Parliament in Kiev. According to Amnesty International reports, there have been more than 30 racist attacks during the first six months in Ukraine so far this year. In the whole of 2007 there were 60 racist attacks, including six murders. The majority of victims were of Asian or African origin. Ex-Soviet Ukraine is campaigning to join both the European Union and NATO, both of which take human rights standards into account when considering new members.
