Against the Waves

Every year, the annual Nouka Baich brings villages together to test their strength against each other with boat races. Over the years, the baich has become something more than just a boat race. It is today a platform for the villagers to interact, local trades-people to participate in a fair and also a chance to open up to the outside world through the media, flaunting their age-old traditions and cultures

22-23 Perspective

The Long Wait for Accountability

It may seem the biggest irony that despite being bestowed with democratic governments since 1991, it was when the country was in a state of emergency that one of the most crucial tools for a sound democratic process, the Right to Information Ordinance was approved by the existing government. Of course it is an indication of how flawed our previous democratic governments have been and how badly we need to get on the right track.

20-21 Impressions

Stadium Arcadium

There is nothing greater than watching cricket at a stadium but our very own stadium where national and international matches take place, leaves a lot to be desired.
