Official Website of DU Economics launched

Fahim Hassan

THE official web-portal (www.econdu.ac.bd) of Department of Economics, University of Dhaka has been launched recently. It contains almost all the updated information regarding this department.

This website contains a broad spectrum of essential information starting from the admission process, current courses to past and recent activities. It also includes an updated faculty list, resources for students, a brief history of this department and a lot more. The Forum provides the scope of online interaction among students and teachers.

All announcements and upcoming events are featured in the notice board.

NSU Career Fair 2008

THE two-day long National Career Fair 2008, the 5th annual event of the kind, organized by the Department of Career & Professional Development Services (CPDS) of North South University, will be held at the Bangladesh-China Friendship Conference Center on 25-26 October 2008.

Over sixty diverse firms are likely to participate in this event. This has the possibility of becoming the largest such fair in the country so far. There will be corporate giants, multinational companies and hi-tech firms. Banks and financial institutions, IT and telecom companies, trading houses, software makers and energy conglomerates will be present. This is meant to be a confluence and convergence of bright, eager and university educated, career oriented job seeking young men and women with progressive and enlightened prospective job providers with promising career prospects.

The fair is open to students and graduates from all public and private universities in the country with no cover charge.