Artistes perform at the programme.

KONGKON KARMAKER, Dinajpur

Dipshikha, an NGO in Dinajpur recently organised a cultural programme to generate awareness in education among villagers. The programme featured discussion, dance and recitation.

The programme was organised as a part of inaugural of Dipshikha's new clay-bamboo building near the old structure, which won the Aga Khan Architect Award last year for its ingenuity. The unique looking building is at Rudrapur village under Biral upazila, Dinajpur.

The two hour-long cultural programme featured performances by students of METI (Modern Education and Training Institute) and DESI (Dipshikha Electrical Skill Improvement).

The programme started with a choral rendition of a patriotic song performed by the students. They also presented dances and recitation.

The programme ended with a play depicting the issues faced by a society riddled with illiteracy. The play urged parents to send their children to school.
