Shadhona to stage "Hey Ananta Punya"

Shadhona, a centre for the advancement of South Asian Music and Dance, will stage "Hey Ananta Punya" on November 9 at Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy, says a press release.

The production finds its inspiration from Rabindranath Tagore's drama "Notir Puja" - an adaptation of his poem "Pujarini" which beautifully narrates the story of Sreemati, a dancer at the court of King Ajatashatru. The King had ruthlessly established Hinduism as the state religion and kept no stone unturned to wipe off every trace of Buddhism. Noti Sreemati who is a seeker of peace and beauty sacrifices her life at the altar of Buddha - the epitome of love and tolerance.

This ballet upholds Tagore's belief that God can be found through personal purity. Directed by Warda Rihab, the production employs Manipuri and a blend of various classical, folk and martial dance forms of eastern India and Bengal.

Installation by Nupur addresses social disparity

ERSHAD KAMOL

Artist Yeasmin Jahan Nupur attained attention for her political satires on canvas. Nupur has switched to a different medium and new theme: installation featuring social discrimination. And for her first installation on the subject, Nupur has won an honourable mention at the ongoing Asian Art Biennale '08 organised by Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy.

Nupur's installation titled "Revised Dress Code" features the situation involving children belonging to different social classes. The figures in the installation are wearing long colourful attire as children usually do. Colour combination and quality of the clothes are same, however, different motifs have been used, referring to children from different social backgrounds, facing diverse issues.

"I got the idea for the installation while working with children at Barguna and Patuakhali. I saw teenage girls with children, burdened with domestic issues. I recalled my childhood and tried to compare my formative years with theirs. I realised that there is a big difference between the issues I faced growing up and theirs. But I presume my childhood is also totally different from one belonging to the higher class," Nupur said. "To address the urgency of minimising the disparity between the classes, I've tied one cloth to another. All children should get the same privileges," she added.

Nupur informed that she wants to continue working on installations. She said, "I enjoy this medium as it presents a three-dimensional image. To me installation is more communicative. Winning this award has motivated me to do better. At the same time I'd like to continue with painting."

A graduate from the Department of Fine Arts, Chittagong University, Nupur began her career as a painter. "My paintings are like journals. Taking clues from the daily life, I try to address social issues in my work," the artist said.

Memorial for Zia Hyder in Pabna

OUR CORRESPONDENT, Pabna

A memorial meeting in honour of the prominent dramatist and educationist Professor Zia Hyder was held last Saturday in Pabna. The Ekushey Book Fair Celebration Committee, Pabna organised the programme at Pabna Press Club auditorium. Educationists, journalists, cultural activists and people from all walks of life attended the event.

President of Ekushey Book Fair Celebration Committee, Pabna, Sultan Ahmed chaired the programme. Among other speakers were author Rashid Haidar, who is also the younger brother of the late Zia Hyder; former Principal of Pabna Government Bulbul College, Professor Mohammed Nurunnabi; dramatist Kumar Prithish Bal; educationist Abdul Mannan Talukder; Professor Shibojit Nag; President of Pabna Press Club, Rumi Khondoker and freedom fighter Robiul Islam. Journalist Kamal Ahmed Siddiqui conducted the programme.

Speakers echoed the view that Zia Hyder was a key figure in the theatre movement of our country.

Not just a dramatist, he was a remarkable writer and the teacher too. His works continue to encourage theatre activists and enthusiasts, they expressed.

Originally from Pabna, Hyder's demise was an irreparable loss to the theatre arena of Bangladesh, speakers felt.
