The areas covered by the sessions included, understanding leadership, understanding exchange management and reality alignment, functional education, IBXP management, and AIESEC Bangladesh 2015 vision.

Arman commenced with an interactive session named 'Realizing Reality'. In this session, LCs could clearly see where they stood in terms of exchange (both incoming and outgoing). It was a wakeup call for all LCs through which they were able to reassess their targets.

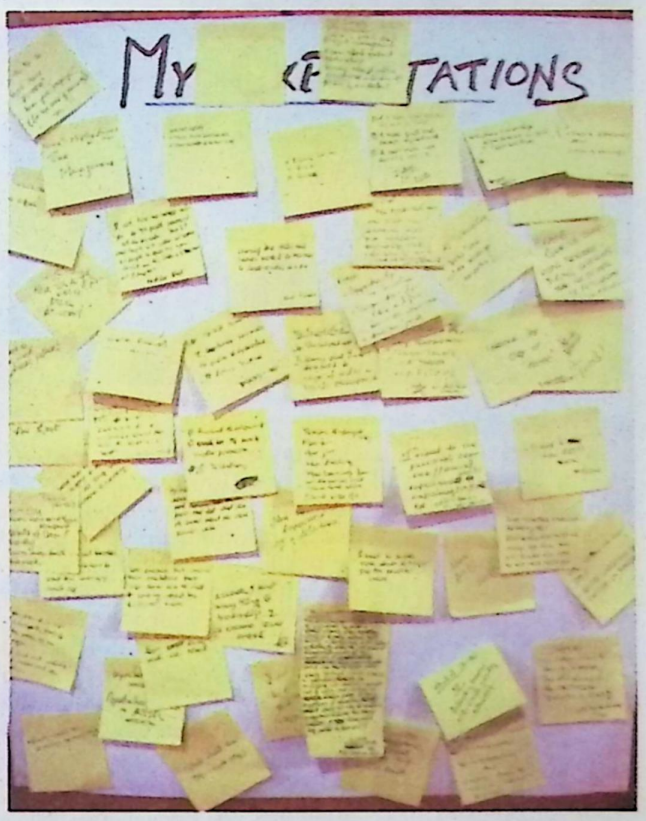

This session was followed by 'Exchange in Big Picture' jointly conducted by Farihan and Nafees. The senior members of AIESEC Bangladesh were once again reminded of the true essence of exchange; to provide individuals from the 110 countries of AIESEC 'a life changing experience'.

After a scrumptious dinner, members attended two back-to-back sessions conducted by Mainuddin. The main aims of the group was to form a 'circle of trust' where all members had to share their AIESEC experience thus far, and were advised by their group members on how they could have done things better. Issue based experience is a fairly new concept to AIESEC Bangladesh. Members were required to understand different functional areas of this concept, and how a project can be planned around various issues such as HIV AIDS, global warming, poverty, women empowerment etc.

The next session was called 'Leadership Theories'. The essence of the session helped delegates understand the differences in leadership skills and managing skills. Next Jahid came forward with his session 'Personal visions and values'. The facilitator shared his own experiences and tried to portray to delegates how it was possible to align AIESEC goals to that of your own. Towhid was back with another brief session on 'How to Build a Team'. At first the basics were briefly explained to the members, and then some knowledge sharing was done through active participation from the delegates. Next the President of AIESEC Bangladesh Fahim conducted his session on 'Emotional Intelligence' and its importance in ones personal and professional life.

After the Lunch break, Arman undertook a session on 'Building Ideals, discussing different aspects, that would help shape an Local Committee or Chapter to be a world class one. This was followed by an open-air presentation by each group.

After this each delegate moved in to different functional blocks according to their preference and specialization. Six blocks including, External Relation (ER), Incoming Exchange (ICX), Talent Management (TM), Outgoing Exchange (OGX), Communication and Finance were divided into two slots. Learning for members in these sessions was very technical and in depth, hence most of the sessions were conducted outdoors.
