

After the tea break, delegates returned to the Plenary Hall a little tired and subdued. However, facilitators Farihan and Nafees kept their spirits applied, as each LC once again faced with discussing their problems, and this time had to come up with effective solutions.

The next day could well be termed as the most hectic day, as LR track members began a five hour-long session from 9 am. This session included a simulation that required members to be divided into five groups. Each group was representing a country, the countries in the pool were, India, Malaysia, China, Saudi Arabia and Canada. Groups were assigned to build a project on one of the following, HIV AIDS, malnutrition, women empowerment, rural education or global warming. Groups had to interact with one another, and set up international partnership for student exchange and knowledge sharing through formal discussion and contract. Finally, for local support they had to go to marketing calls to booths set up by facilitators, each booth representing an NGO, or educational institution, corporate house etc. The groups were assigned an exchange target, which they had to meet. Most of the groups achieved their targets, thus the session was deemed to be a success. After lunch, Jahid carried out a functional session on international partnerships and Amzad finished off the sessions for the conference with quips on leadership.

The conference was not all sessions and learning. Delegates got their fair share of fun too. There were DJ parties, Rock concerts (featuring AIESEC's own Zaved, Mainuddin, Eid, Rehnuma, Fahmin and a few others) and of course a lavish gala dinner. The gala dinner was held on January 9, 2009 attended by externals from ACME, delegates and AIESEC Alumnus. Mr.Mohammad Rafiqul Islam, Director Marketing & Sales, and Mr. Asif Ainul Hoque, Head of HR of ACME Laboratories spoke on the occasion and expressed their interest in a long-term partnership with AIESEC and congratulated everybody on the success of the conference.
