Bangladesh signed on to the convention led by a previous AL-led government on October 5, 1998, promising to create effective legislation, and to take administrative, judicial or other measures to prevent acts of torture in its territory.

The country's constitution also provides safeguard against torture. Article 35 (5) of the constitution addresses it directly, saying, "No person shall be subjected to torture or to cruel, inhuman, or degrading punishment or treatment.

But no successive government, including all AL-led ones, made any move to enact any law to prevent such incidents.

Prior to the December 29, 2008 parliamentary election, there was a rather long period in the country, when a large number of extra judicial killings, torture and abuses of human rights were reported, mainly during the regimes of BNP-led alliance government and the successive immediate past military backed caretaker government.

The Parliament Secretariat officials said the AL lawmaker submitted two bills --- one is against torture, and the other is against eviction of slum dwellers, to protect them from whimsical eviction from public lands.

The officials said they will send the bills to the Parliamentary Standing Committee on Private Members' Bills and Resolutions, which is likely to be formed this week.

"The committee will scrutinise the bills and recommend or disregard those for placement in the House," a senior official said. Passage of the bill against torture, depends on the government's will and the House's sentiment for enacting such a law, the official added.

THE ANTI-TORTURE BILL According to the bill, torture means any act or omission which causes physical or mental pain to any person, for obtaining from that person or some other person, information or a confession, or for punishing that person for any act or omission, for which that person or some other person is responsible, or is suspected The premier on February of being responsible, or for the bill shall be concluded
