Mindless massacres imprinted on HQ

KAILASH SARKAR

It looks like a war zone with hundreds of thousands of bullet cartridges, several hundred pairs of boots and as many caps littering the premises of the BDR Headquarters.

The windows, glasses and walls of different buildings bear the marks of indiscriminate firing. The bloodstained walls and floors of different establishments would remind anyone of houses of the death.

The rampaged Darbar Hall where the assassination is suspected to have been launched is almost destroyed. The wall near the stage and glasses of the Hall received innumerable bullets.

According to witnesses, countless holes were found on the glasses as bullets ripped through those, breaking some into pieces.

During a random visit, all the pieces of furniture inside the Hall were found ransacked and displaced. Over 200 crests were still lying on a table near the stage. Those were supposed to be disbursed among the winners, who took part in various cultural functions and sports.

Massacre was committed at the residences of Maj Gen Shakil Ahmed, director general of BDR, and Col Mujibul Huq, sector commander of Dhaka and also former chief of Dal-Bhat Programme.

Maj Gen Shakil's residence was found totally ransacked with hundreds of bullet marks all around. The floor and walls were found bloodstained, while all the pieces of furniture and utensils were damaged.

Witnesses say the entire first floor of the duplex residence was bloodstained, while the walls were hit by a hail of bullets.

It seems the attackers opened indiscriminate fire on the building from outside and also sprayed bullets when they made the break-in.

The entire stairway of the building was bloodstained as bullet-hit bodies were dragged out from the upperfloor.

The atrocities were no less at Col Mujibul Huq's residence, which was badly burned. Two grenades were still lying in front of the house, possibly abandoned by the culprits.

Hundreds of shoes and pieces of uniforms were found lying mainly near the walls around the border guards' HQ.

Sources say the soldiers fled the area jumping over the walls leaving their uniforms and boots behind. The boots and uniforms were also found abandoned at different tents of the soldiers who came from outside the capital.

They left the tents in a hurry, leaving all the valuables, dresses and uniforms behind.

BNP demands broad-based probe body

BNP has demanded formation of a broad-based committee comprised of credible persons, experts and representatives of armed forces to investigate the BDR mutiny.

The National Standing Committee of BNP in a statement last night also urged all to face the prevailing situation with patience, and maintaining peace and unity.

The statement followed a meeting of the standing committee with party Chairperson Khaleda Zia in the chair at her Gulshan office in the city.

The major opposition party alleged that the 'action and reaction' in the wake of the killings in the mutiny proved the government's total failure to resolve the crisis. "Narrow mentality and

Obama sets 18 months to end Iraq pullout

Congress finds consensus on plan

AP, Camp Lejeune/Washington

President Barack Obama consigned the Iraq war to history on Friday, declaring he will end combat operations within 18 months and open a new era of diplomacy in the Middle East.

After years of bitterly debating whether to set a timetable for troop withdrawals in Iraq, Congress has agreed to one.

The general consensus came Friday in the form of statements endorsing President Barack Obama's plan to bring home roughly two-thirds of the US military force in Iraq by August 2010.

"Let me say this as plainly as I can: By August 31, 2010, our combat mission in Iraq will end,"

Obama told Marines who are about to deploy by the thousands to the other war front, Afghanistan.

Even so, Obama will leave the bulk of troops in place this year, contrary to hopes of Democratic leaders for a speedier pullout. And after combat forces withdraw, 35,000 to 50,000 will stay behind for an additional year and half of support and counterterrorism duties.

Just six weeks into office, Obama used blunt terms and a cast-in-stone promise to write the last chapter of a war that began six years ago. It has cost more in lives, money and national stamina than ever envisioned.

Hazari back in action in Feni

Re-occupies gymnasium land

UNB, Feni

Former Awami League leader Joynal Hazari's musclemen have occupied the land of once constructed Vendu Hazari Gymnasium soon after he returned to his hometown Feni on Friday.

The boundary walls of the land were pulled down late Friday night though it had been returned to its legal owners in mid-2001.

Romana Ahmed, one of the landowners, said the administration was duly informed about the forcible action of Hazari's musclemen.

Supporters of Hazari said they would compel those who had demolished it in the absence of their leader to rebuild the gymnasium.

Returning home after about nine years of hiding in neighbouring India, Hazari surrendered to the High Court on February 22 and secured bail in one case with order to appear

Housewife, her two daughters murdered in city

Shahnaj and Urmi were strangled and Rumi was drowned in a big water container at their fourth floor flat in a six-storey building.

Shahnaj's husband Abdur Rashid Khan and police suspect that her brother Masud along with two accomplices committed the murders.

Rashid, who is a plastic trader, said Masud has criminal records and he might have killed his wife and two daughters as they resisted his bid to commit robbery at his house.

Police however suspect family feud over property might be the cause behind the killings.

Rashid and his son Kabir were not at the house when the incident occurred.
