

Taiwan's pro-independence activists form the numbers "remember 228" in a Taipei square in memory of a massacre on this day 62 years ago. Thousands of islanders were killed in the 1947 crackdown by the Kuomintang troops and the massacre remained taboo in Taiwan for decades under the rule of the late nationalist leader Chiang Kai-shek until then president Lee Teng-hui made the first official apology in 1995.

Indian girl whoes story was documented in the oscar winning documentary Smile Pinky. Pinky Sonkar (R) smiles as she talks with Dr. Subodh Kumar Singh at a press conference in New Delhi on February 27, 2009. 'Smile Pinky', which won an Oscar in the 'Best Short Documentary' category at the 81st Academy Awards, is the story of the Pinky Sonkar, a six-year old Indian girl with a lip deformity whose life was transformed when she received a free corrective surgery from the American charity 'Smile Train' on her cleft lip.

A copy of the final edition of the Rocky Mountain News sits in a newspaper box on a street corner in Denver, Colorado. Friday's edition was the last for the nearly 150-year-old daily, Colorado's oldest newspaper. The News owner E.W. Scripps Co. announced Thursday that the paper was closing down after efforts to sell the money-losing newspaper failed.
