Dhaka's detailed area plan grossly flawed

Review body says it would harm environment, encourage housing in restricted zones

TAWFIQUE ALI and HELEMUL ALAM

The draft Detailed Area Plan (DAP) of Dhaka is full of anomalies and favours private housing businesses at the cost of flood flow zones vital for the sustenance of the capital city and its environment, DAP review committee members said in their report.

Prof Jamilur Reza Choudhury, head of the 17-member committee formed to review the plan, said the draft DAP is not in 'good shape'.

The review committee submitted its report to Rajuk on March 31 with recommendations.

The committee, with a 13-member technical working group (TWG), was set with the task of examining the plans drawn up in the draft and whether they were in keeping with the standards of the structural and urban area plans of Dhaka Metropolitan Development Plan (DMDP).

The report states, the draft is fundamentally inconsistent with the DMDP and other planning documents including the Strategic Transport Planning. It lacks basic planning standards.

"The draft DAP has proposed housing in areas marked as flood flow zones, sub-flood flow zones and wetlands in the DMDP in Dhaka's eastern fringe of Bilbaunia and Savar areas," architect Iqbal Habib, who coordinated the TWG work, said.

Many real estate companies have already embarked on illegal housing projects in those areas without government approval under the private land development rules of 2004.

DAP is the third component of DMDP, popularly known as the master plan of the metropolis, and it must be consistent with the DMDP's two other plans. But experts point out that many proposals have been made in the DAP in blatant deviation from the city's other structural plans and urban area plans.

The TWG report has remarked that changes in the status of the main flood flow zones and high value agricultural land 'creates scope for private land

Upazila chairmen demand end of MPs' control

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Leaders of Bangladesh Upazila Parishad Association yesterday alleged that lawmakers have already started creating complexities in the functioning of upazila parishads across the country.

The association leaders at a press briefing demanded removal of the "controversial provisions" regarding lawmakers' authority over the parishads.

They said a "conspiracy" is being hatched to cancel the upazila system.

They also urged all chairmen and vice-chairmen to be alert and requested the government to bring necessary amendments to make the Upazila Parishad Act, 2009 more acceptable.

The government yesterday issued the gazette of the Upazila Parishad Act, 2009. Earlier on April 6, the Upazila Parishad Bill 2009 was passed in parliament keeping some provisions to ensure lawmakers' control over the activities of the parishads.

Referring to the recent threat of some chairmen to declare lawmakers unwanted at the parishad complexes and a comment of LGRD Minister Syed Ashraf Islam, the association leaders said such activities of a vested quarter and unexpected comment from a responsible minister made the people frustrated.

UZ chairmen honoured in new law

Says speaker

A CORRESPONDENT, Gopalganj

Speaker of the Jatiya Sangsad advocate Abdul Hamid yesterday said upazila chairmen have been honoured more by the Upazila Parishad Act passed in the current parliament than the earlier act.

He said if both the lawmaker and the upazila chairman want development in their area there is no reason of conflict between them.

Threat to declare MPs 'persona non grata' in their respective areas is a very bad culture, he said. "Both the MP and the upazila chairman should participate in local development process," he added.

The speaker said this while

MUMBAI ATTACKS

FBI agents to testify at trial

AP, Mumbai

More than 100 witnesses, including US FBI agents, will testify at the trial of the man police say is the only surviving gunman in the bloody Mumbai siege, Indian prosecutors said Saturday.

Five foreign experts will present evidence against Mohammed Ajmal Kasab, special public prosecutor Ujjwal Nikam told the court Saturday on the second day of the trial.

Kasab is accused of being one of 10 gunmen who killed 166 people, including several Americans, in a three-day rampage through the city that targeted a train station, two luxury hotels and a Jewish centre.

Nikam said the FBI had analysed four global positioning devices found on the dead gunmen after the attacks and these would be instrumental in proving the men had come from Pakistan.

Opening the trial Friday, Nikam said Kasab had a direct hand in the deaths of 72 people and was part of "a criminal conspiracy hatched in Pakistan" which could not have been undertaken without training from "intelligence professionals" in Pakistan.
