War hero Selina fought for repression-free society

Speakers tell publication ceremony

DU CORRESPONDENT

Politician and social worker Selina Banu in her entire life had fought to establish a society free of repression and discrimination as well as to realise rights of the commoners, speakers at a book launching ceremony said yesterday.

They said Selina, who participated in the anti-British 'Swadeshi' movement and later in the liberation war of 1971 in male dress, was at a time a social worker, noted politician and friend of the deprived quarters in society.

The speakers said this at the publication ceremony of the book titled 'Selina Banu: Sangrami Nari' (Selina Banu: A struggling woman) published by Jatiya Sahitya Prokashoni at Nabab Nawab Ali Chowdhury Senate Bhaban on the Dhaka University campus.

Addressing the ceremony, DU Vice Chancellor Prof AAMS Arefin Siddique termed the book a precious work and hoped that it would help young generation know about Selina and build their lives following her ideology.

"Human beings pass away, but their memories and works left. Contributions of Selina to the society would keep her alive in people's minds," the VC said, adding that she played a vital role in the country's social and political arena by winning people's hearts through love and her activities.

Selina was born on October 12, 1926 in Pabna and played a vital role in women's education and was involved in the left-leaning student politics. She was an active worker at all secular movements and took part in demonstrations when the 'communal clashes' were continuing in 1964.

The Statesman published an interview titled 'A shy girl with gun' of Selina on April 12, 1971 when she was in the battlefield of the liberation war.

The veteran war hero died on January 26 in 1983.

Noted journalist Kamal Lohani presided over the programme which was also addressed by Communist Party of Bangladesh General Secretary Mujahidul Islam Selim, Duta President Prof Khandokar Bazul Haque, Prof MM Akash and Prateeti Dutta.

Call to bring edn system out of colonial thoughts

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The country's education system should be brought out of the cocoon of British colonial thoughts and untrack education system be introduced at least at primary level, speakers said at the launching ceremony of an anthology on education policy yesterday.

They further said that the education system should focus on history, philosophy and science and technology education.

The speakers said this at the launching ceremony of the anthology titled 'Withered policy reforms in education: Lessons and challenges' published by Unnayan Onneshan (UO), a non-government organisation.

Former professor of Rajshahi University (RU) Shahidul Islam unwrapped the cover of the book edited by Md Sarwar Basher at the National Press Club in the city.

Prof Shahidul said, "Colonial thoughts are still existing in our education system which we should get rid of the tradition to educate our nation."

"Education has now become a privilege, not a right. Those who are well-off are now getting good education and the poor are deprived of education," he added.

"We did not need eight education commissions but we could have succeeded with only one education system if the policy was pro-people," he further said.

Prof Shahidul urged the newly formed education commission headed by National Prof Kabir Chowdhury to introduce a untrack education system at the primary level.

The speakers at the programme also said the country needs pro-people politics to adopt a pro-people education policy.

The launching ceremony was addressed by Farah Kabir, country director of ActionAid Bangladesh, Manosh Chowdhury of Jahangirnagar University, SA Hassan Al Feroque of ActionAid Bangladesh and Arup Rahe, one of the writers of the anthology.

Vitamin-A plus campaign on June 6

UNB, Dhaka

Aimed at protecting infants from blindness and death risks, the government will launch a vigorous campaign on June 6 when children across the country will be fed vitamin-A capsules and anti-worm tablets.

Dr M Mokim Ali Biswas of Institute of Public Health Nutrition (IPHN) told UNB yesterday that the high-powered vitamin-A capsule will be fed to children aged 1 to 5 years and anti-worm tablet to those aged 2 to 5 years.

IPHN, under its planning and advocacy programme, is now holding meetings at district level to make people aware of the need for protecting the children from blindness and worm-related diseases.

Dr Mokim said they have already completed similar meetings at the divisional level. Gradually they will go to the upazila and union level to make the people aware of the programme.

He said child blindness is not yet a serious problem in Bangladesh. It is estimated 0.04 percent of the children are suffering from night-blindness.

According to the World Health Organisation (WHO), the night-blind is termed as problem if it is found among more than one percent children, he added.

Citing recently held study reports, Dr Mokim said Vitamin-A capsule protects the children not only from blindness but it also decreases the rate of child mortality. Besides it decreases the range and complexity of Diarrhoea.

The IPHN official said they are working in dealing with some other programmes, including Breast Milk Substitute (BMS Code), Universal Salt Iodisation (USID), Bangladesh Nutrition (BAN Nut) and School Health.

RAMNA BATAMUL BLAST PW demands exemplary punishment to culprits

COURT CORRESPONDENT

A prosecution witness, who was injured in the Ramna Batamul blast, yesterday demanded exemplary punishment before a Dhaka court to the culprits responsible for committing such heinous offences.

Judge ANM Bashir Ullah of the Metropolitan Sessions Judge's Court recorded statements of businessman Amin Ullah in connection with the case filed for murder. After recording his statement, Amin was cross-examined by the defence lawyers.

The court then fixed May 20 and 21 for next hearing of the case and summoned several other witnesses to appear before the court on the scheduled date.

Earlier, sergeant Amal Chandra Chanda, complainant of the murder case, had given his statement before the court on May 3.

The same court had earlier fixed May 19 for next hearing of the case filed under Explosive Substances Act.

Ten people were killed and scores injured in the blast at Ramna Batamul during Pahela Baishakh celebrations on April 14, 2001. Following the carnage, two cases -- one for murder and another for possession and use of explosive substances -- were filed with Ramna Police Station.

In his deposition, Amin told the court that on April 14, 2001 he went to Ramna Batamul where Pahela Baishakh celebrations were being held. At about 8:15am, a bomb exploded around 15 to 20 yards away from the stage. In the blasts, he suffered injuries in his legs and other parts of the body. He also lost his sense.

He was admitted to Dhaka Medical College and Hospital (DMCH) for treatment. He was later shifted to Combined Military Hospital (CMH) as his health condition was deteriorating, the witness said.

Harkatul Jihad (Huji) chief Mufti Abdul Hannan, Arif Hasan Suman, Shahadat Ullah Jewel, Maulana Abu Taher and Maulana Abdur Rauf, now in jail custody, were produced before the court during yesterday's hearing. Another accused Maulana Akbar Hossain alias Helaluddin, now on a High Court bail, was also present in the court.

Maulana Tajuddin, younger brother of former BNP deputy minister Abdus Salam Pintu, and seven other accused have been absconding since filing of the cases.
