

Rationing for RMG workers by May 15

PORIMOL PALMA

Bangladesh Garment Manufacturers and Exporters Association (BGMEA) will start providing ration rice at Tk 16 a kg for garment workers in Dhaka and Chittagong by May 15.

Market price of coarse rice now is more than Tk 20 a kg while the government started procuring rice at Tk 22 per kg on May 1.

"We shall go for ration system at least on an experimental basis," BGMEA President Abdus Salam Murshed told The Daily Star on Monday.

Besides, Bangladesh Knitwear Manufacturers and Exporters Association (BKMEA) Vice President Zahidul Hoq Bhuiya said as rice price is now going up, they will also begin ration programme for their workers. He however did not give any time limit for this.

Both the BGMEA and BKMEA had earlier planned to start food rationing for their workers in the first week of April but did not do so sensing possible complexities in the process as they did not have experience in this field.

Meanwhile, the government had decided to supply ration rice for garment workers in March as part of its plan to expand safety net programmes for low-income people. It proposed to provide ration rice for workers at Tk 18 a kg.

Salam said market price of rice at that time was Tk 22-22.5 a kg, and around 600 to 700 factories wanted to get ration rice. A few days later, the government launched open market sale (OMS) of rice, which resulted in fall of rice price.

Leaders of the BGMEA and BKMEA then requested the government to lower price of ration rice for their workers since sale of it at Tk 18 a kg was not possible. And the government then re-fixed the price at Tk 16 a kg, which was acceptable to them (leaders).

But, Salam said, they found poor response from the workers to their plans for ration rice since the difference between its market price and ration price was small.

Asked about this, Labour leader Nazma Akhter said the BGMEA and BKMEA are quite active in demanding the government facilities for them but they do not appear to be so in the case of the rationing programme.

"They should not play with the fate of workers. The government has pledged to provide rice at lower price, and they must cooperate with it to ensure that workers are not deprived."

She said garment workers would be greatly benefited if they get rice at Tk 16 per kg.

Food and Disaster Management Minister Abdur Razzaque, when contacted on Monday, said, "Garment factories can get rice from us (government) any time for their workers at the fixed price. We want availability of food to all."

Swat peace deal nears collapse

Panicked residents flee; suicide attack kills 5 in N-E Pakistan

AFP, AP, Peshawar

A suicide bomber rammed a car into troops in northwest Pakistan killing five people as panicked residents fled a key town under gunfire yesterday, fearing that a peace deal would collapse.

Panicked residents fled suburban areas of a key northwest Pakistan town yesterday after the army issued an evacuation order, which they immediately withdrew, witnesses said.

The military ordered four neighbourhoods on the edge of Mingora, the main town in the Taliban-infested Swat valley, to evacuate and announced a break in an indefinite curfew for the displaced to flee to a special camp.

A Pakistani minister says the government expects up to 500,000 people to flee fighting between the army and the Taliban in a north-western valley.

Information minister for the northwest, Mian Iftikhar Hussain, says authorities are preparing six camps to accommodate those expected to flee the Swat Valley in the coming days.

Witness and officials say fighting between troops and militants broke out in Swat on Tuesday and that hundreds were fleeing.

Overnight clashes in Mingora and gunfire after daybreak has imperiled an increasingly shaky peace deal in Swat, where the Taliban focused on a terrifying insurgency for nearly two years until a ceasefire was brokered in February.

LTTE chief trapped

Lankan troops surround him in small strip of coastline, claims govt

AFP, AP, Colombo

Sri Lanka's Tamil rebel leader Velupillai Prabhakaran is trapped in a small strip of coastline that has been surrounded by government soldiers, the prime minister said yesterday.

Ratnasiri Wickrematunge told parliament that Prabhakaran, 54, was still leading his Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam (LTTE) fighters in their desperate battle for survival against an overwhelming military offensive.

"We have information that Prabhakaran is still in a four-square kilometre (1.5 square mile) area in Mullaitivu," Wickrematunge said.

He added that the guerrillas were fighting back against government troops with a large arsenal of weapons that they had stockpiled.

Prabhakaran has not been seen for more than 18 months, and speculation has been rife that he may have been killed or already fled the island.

Sri Lanka's navy has increased patrols off the Mullaitivu coast to stop him escaping, and Malaysia and India have been alerted to be on the lookout.

Sri Lankan soldiers broke through rebel defences and advanced further into the Tamil Tigers' last remaining territory, inflicting heavy damage on the beleaguered insurgents, the military said yesterday.

World warned of next wave of swine flu

AFP, Paris

Even as the swine flu's global progression slows, experts said yesterday the world must brace for a second wave of infection that, previous pandemics have shown, could be far more virulent.

All three of the major flu pandemics of the 20th century -- including the Spanish Flu of 1918, which left at least 40 million dead -- started with a milder outbreak in the northern hemisphere's late spring, they point out.

Pandemics typically begin with a "herald wave" --

War tribunals, probe teams by June

Law minister says delay is to ensure fairness

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Law Minister Shafique Ahmed yesterday said the government would complete formation of tribunals and appointment of investigators and prosecutors by the end of June for holding trial of 1971 war criminals maintaining international standards.

The government is delaying the trial for ensuring international standard that no chance is left to doubt its fairness and transparency, he said, adding that the government was moving cautiously in taking steps for holding the trial.

He, however said, the appointment of prosecutors will be made within this month.

Talking to newsmen at his secretariat office yesterday afternoon, the law minister said time is needed for designating courts, recruiting manpower and setting up offices of prosecutors.

He said the government is gathering experience of holding trial of the war criminals from Nuremberg and Cambodia that held trial of war criminals.

Asked about the government's move to amend the Anti-Corruption Commission (ACC) Act 2004, Shafique said this law was misused to harass politicians in most cases in the past and therefore the government is bringing the amendment to this law for avoiding its further misuse.

He said the ACC will continue to take legal steps on corruption allegations against government and semi-government officials and employees under section 409 of the Penal Code. Responding to a proposal of the ACC, section 408 of the Penal Code that was used to deal with
