And Justice

The Rapid Action Battalion (RAB) has a questionable reputation and for the most part that reputation is justified. Over the past five years, hundreds have died in apparent 'crossfire' encounters. Human rights organisations both nationally and internationally have investigated hundreds of other stories of torture, yet within the country not much has been done about the organisation that was created to protect people's rights, not abuse them.

THE STAR DESK
PHOTOS: ZAHEDUL I KHAN

