

Manpower shortage hits community clinics

MAHBUBA ZANNAT

Although the government has opened a total of 8464 community clinics, out of 11,500, they cannot provide people with the expected level of service because of lack of manpower and logistic support.

In spite of having sufficient budget, it will be tough to run those community clinics without assigned manpower exclusively for community clinics, said government officials.

As starting the community clinics was one of the priority issues of the Awami League (AL) government, most of the community clinics were opened within the last four months to provide people with primary healthcare support and to work as referral centres.

But the fact is that most of the community clinics remain closed for most of the time for inadequate number of Health Assistants (HA) and Family Welfare Assistants (FWA).

"It is not possible to run all the community clinics with the existing manpower. According to the rule an HA is supposed to stay at the community clinic three days a week while an FWA the rest of the days. But the reality is that there is no HA in many wards," said Dr Saïdur Rahman Bhuiyan, civil surgeon of Gazipur district.

He also said that a total of 189 community clinics have been reopened recently among the 193. But there are only 158 HAs in the district against the post of 273, which is quite inadequate. The same goes for the FWAs.

About 7,000 posts of HAs are currently vacant country-wide. As no HA was recruited since 2004, manpower shortage has been hindering the health service and leading the community clinics to work partially.

"We have already sent a proposal to the government to recruit at least one assigned person for each clinic as the HAs and FWAs are appointed temporarily and they have lots of other jobs to do," said deputy programme manager of community clinic Dr KM Azad.

"However, we are trying to manage HAs from the adjacent wards for the community clinics where there is no HA. World Health Organisation (WHO) also expressed its willingness to provide us with one health worker for each community clinic," he said.

While visiting the community clinics at different districts, the correspondent found that most of the clinics are either closed for its shabby condition or partially closed for lack of manpower, drugs and other logistic.

The condition of the community clinic at Kamarjuri village of Gachha union, where people come once a month to immunise their babies, is so vulnerable that people find it difficult to get inside the clinic.

The earth has been removed from the basement, as it remained abandoned for eight long years. The doors, windows and floors lie in a dilapidated condition while the electrical fans, chairs, tables and other equipment have already been damaged for remaining unused for so long.

It is also very risky for the expecting mothers to enter the clinic climbing the stairs since if they slip for once, it will be hazardous for their life and the foetus also.

Condition of Khalikur (south) Community Clinic, which was launched on January 16 in 2001 by the then lawmaker Ahsanullah Master, is almost the same as most of the time the clinic is kept under lock and key.

The locals also complained that without providing immunisation once a month, the community clinics are virtually non-functional. They also expressed disappointment as the clinics that were built spending lots of money are now in shambles and requires further amount for renovation. About 80 community clinics in the country have already gone under water for river erosion.

The AL government in its last regime decided to set up one community clinic for every 6,000 people and about 11,500 community clinics were established by 2001 with a view to providing people with healthcare services. But during the period of the BNP-led four-party alliance government these community clinics were abandoned and the present government is trying to reopen these clinics.

The community clinics are supposed to be considered at the first step of Essential Service Package and run as one stop service centre as per the need of the community people.

Registration of the pregnant mothers, ante natal, during delivery and post natal services, immunisation of the babies, treatment of ARI, diarrhoea, tuberculosis, malaria, short-term family planning service and health education will be provided at the community clinics.

Director of Primary Healthcare of Directorate General of Health Services Dr ABM Jahangir Alam said that medicine worth Tk six crore have been sent to the district civil surgeons' office and people will soon start reaping the benefits of the community clinics.

He also said that if the community clinics could be run properly, it would reduce pressure from the upazila health complex and if the community clinic workers are provided with Skilled Birth Attendant (SBA) training, safe delivery could be ensured, too.

Make NGO activities more accountable, transparent

STAFF CORRESPONDENT, Sylhet

Speakers at a view exchange meeting yesterday said NGO activities should be made more accountable and transparent.

They said financial accountability and transparency are very much needed for their smooth functioning.

The meeting titled 'Problems regarding good governance in NGO sector and their solutions' was organised by Transparency International Bangladesh (TIB) in association with NGO Affairs Bureau, Manusher Jonno Foundation, Brac and Oxfam at Sylhet Zila Parishad auditorium with Deputy Commissioner Sazzadul Hasan in the chair.

Divisional Commissioner Dr Zafar Ahmed Khan was the chief guest at the meeting which was also addressed by Editor and Publisher of The Daily Star Mahfuz Anam, also a member of TIB Trustee Board, as guest of honour.

TIB Executive Director Dr Iftekharuzaman moderated the meeting where Ashfaque Amin Mukut of NGO Bureau and Sadhan Kumar Das of TIB presented papers.

NGO Affairs Bureau Director General Mushtaque Hasan Md Iftekhar and Brac's Director (Training) Shipa Hafeez spoke on the theme of the meeting which was attended by over 100 government officials, TIB office-bearers and NGO leaders from four districts of the division.

The speakers said close coordination between the NGOs and the government is needed to ensure good governance in NGO sector.

They said now a days the NGOs are working as partners of the government in development process.

The speakers said more accountability and more transparency are needed for the growing number of NGOs in the country.

Corruption and irregularities stand in the way of NGO activities, they added.

The speakers stressed the need for wider monitoring of NGO activities and openness of all information for the stakeholders.

There should be specific rules for appointing retired government officials to NGO posts, they opined.

The divisional commissioner said it is not possible for the government alone to carry out all development activities, and as such the NGOs are to work as development partners.

They have developed management skills and local level leadership, but establishment of good governance is a must for their total success, he added.

"Our NGOs have already achieved worldwide appreciation. Brac's non-formal education has been replicated in 43 countries. The micro-credit programme is also a globally accepted programme," said Mahfuz Anam.

For few NGOs, all cannot be blamed, and they should attain financial accountability and transparency, he said, adding that close understanding between the government and NGOs should be ensured to develop a further workable system.

The deputy commissioner suggested setting up division level offices of NGO Affairs Bureau to strengthen the monitoring of NGO activities.

Withdraw duty on newsprint: Ershad

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Terming the proposed budget a 'pro-people budget', Jatya Party (JP) Chairman Hussein Muhammad Ershad yesterday said opportunity to whiten the undisclosed money and impose import duty on newsprint are the negative sides of the budget.

He, however, said considering the political as well as national interest, they support the opportunity of whitening the undisclosed money, but the time frame for whitening black money should be limited to one year instead of three years.

Urging the finance minister to withdraw the proposed duty on newsprint, Ershad said newspaper industry would be affected badly if the proposed five percent import duty is not withdrawn.

The JP chairman said this at a press conference on the proposed budget at his Banani office in the city where party leaders Anisul Islam Mahmud and Ruhul Amin Howlader were present, among others.

On the provision of whitening black money, he said they do not support it ethically, but it is necessary for the country due to existing global meltdown. But such opportunity should not be given for purchasing flat.

"Such provision is needed to use the siphoned-off money to serve the country's interest, but these money should be invested only in industrial sector."

Applauding the proposed budget, the former president said it is a big budget but not illogical or unrealistic, even it is not a high ambitious at all.

"There are a lot of positive sides in the budget, even many of our electoral pledges like agriculture and rural development have been accommodated in the budget. So, the countrymen have accepted the budget cordially."

Ershad, a former military dictator, also said that as a grand alliance partner, his party will cooperate with the government to implement the budget to meet the people's expectations.

BATB launches afforestation programme

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

British American Tobacco Bangladesh (BATB) launched its Afforestation Programme 2009 at Agargaon in the city yesterday as part of its corporate social responsibility.

BATB's afforestation drive is the largest by any private sector entity in the country.

Chairman of the company Gohar Mainuddin said this year BATB will distribute a total of 3.5 million saplings free of cost around the country. Of them, one lakh saplings will be distributed in Dhaka city.

The saplings include varieties of local fruit-bearing plants, coniferous plants, medicinal plants and some high-yielding exotic species.

The city dwellers can collect the saplings from Krishibid Udyan Nursery near the Department of Environment at Agargaon.

The BATB chairman said, "When we first started the initiative in the 80s, people did not show much interest. We distributed saplings to tobacco farmers at first and gave them money to nurture the plants. It became popular after a long motivation campaign."

BATB received five national awards for its special contribution to afforestation across the country.

BATB Managing Director Alan Davy said saving the trees is very important for Bangladesh. Its necessity was demonstrated quite well during the cyclone Sidr by the Sundarbans.

"The fight against climate change is a shared responsibility. We all have to do our part for the next generation," he added.
