

WHILE we in the Star Campus still struggle to see sense into what we do, our beloved magazine has reached its third year of birth making us all feel the weighty sense of pride and joy. Since its launch in August 2006 Star Campus has taken in both appreciation and criticism from its readers, contributors and supporters. During this entire length of three years it has been a breathtaking experience of enlightment as we took falls and shocks with the sameness of celebrating excellent features and a growing readership. This year our theme is 'Winds of Change' as we aim at exploring what changes are looked-for by the young people of society. We hope our readers will welcome the inspiration and take pleasure in our efforts!

-- Sarah Z H

Art work: M. Taha Tareque