Two months after his death, Michael Jackson is to be buried today in a private sunset ceremony that will see the "King of Pop" laid to rest alongside a galaxy of Hollywood stars.

The tragic pop music icon, whose mysterious June 25 death was ruled a homicide by city officials last week, will be interred in an elaborate mausoleum at the Forest Lawn Memorial Park in the suburb of Glendale.

Planters trapped by unholy nexus

Dishonest forest officials, illegal loggers make genuine timber business tough

SHANTIMOY CHAKMA, Rangamati

Real planters struggle to market their timber due to alleged bribery by a section of forest officials and procedural flaws in issuing permit.

Timber merchants allege illegal loggers run their business scot-free in connivance with the dishonest forest officials, leaving all the hassles for the genuine planters.

The planters allege the officials of the Department of Forest are more interested to mint bribe money out of the jote land instead of taking care of the forests.

Gunodhar Chakma, a jote owner, alleges they have to give Tk 1.5 lakh in bribe and yet the forest authorities create a lot of hassles in issuing them permit.

"At times they take up to three years upon application to issue a permit," he adds.

The forest department issues permit to the jote holders allowing the planters to market their timber. The divisional forest officers (DFOs) mainly issue the permits in every forest division.

In Rangamati Circle, four forest divisions --

CHT South Forest Division, CHT North Forest Division, Unclassified Forest Division and Jhum Control Division -- are responsible for issuing permit.

Forest department insiders say each of the four divisions issues on average 10 to 15 permits every month.

Avoy Prakash Chakma, a timber trader and president of Upajatiya Kathbabsayee O Jotemalik Kalyan Samity, in Rangamati says fundamental rights of planters are being violated as they cannot sell their timber without taking permission from the foresters.

He adds it takes three years to get permission issued by the forest department. They have to suffer a lot and run from table to table to get the permit, he adds.

He however says it is not so hard for someone to get the permit "if they give hefty bribes to the DFOs".

Sources say before issuing permit the foresters go for field inspection at least thrice. The range officer concerned first inspects the jote

CITY CONTINUES TO TOIL IN TAILBACKS

Only one out of 14 decisions enforced

KAILASH SARKAR

Only one out of the 14 decisions the government made on August 20, talking to 12 government agencies to curb traffic jams, was implemented and even that proved ineffective, resulting in the usual unrelenting citywide gridlocks.

The meeting had also formed a committee to coordinate the 12 agencies' activities to curb traffic jams.

An official who was present in that meeting could hardly recall the decisions made while one backtracked from the commitments made. A few others are yet to start working to implement the decisions.

They said lack of coordination between agencies, manpower shortage and poor logistic supports caused their failure to give people some relief from the nagging traffic jams.

According to the decisions, a number of mobile courts were set up for special drives against unfit vehicles and vehicles that cause traffic jams but the drive failed to provide desired results.

The Rajdhani Unnayan Karttripakkha was asked to force 198 high-rise buildings to use the designated place to park vehicles. The car parks of those buildings are now being used for other purposes forcing people to park on the road.

Dhaka Metropolitan Police Commissioner AKM Shahidul Hoque said, "We conducted a survey and detected that those 198 buildings have car parks but use the space for other purposes. We sent Rajuk the survey Tuesday with

ASIAN HIGHWAY

JS body pulls for 2 routes

RASHIDUL HASAN

A parliamentary committee yesterday recommended the government to link both Benapole-Dhaka-Tamabil and Banglabandha-Dhaka-Tamabil routes to connect Bangladesh with Asian Highway, an international network of 141,000 km of standard highways crisscrossing Asian countries with links to Europe.

Chairman of the parliamentary watchdog body on communications ministry Sheikh Muzibur Rahman told this to reporters after its meeting at the parliament building complex.

Nazrul Islam Manzu, lone BNP lawmaker in the committee, at a separate briefing after the meeting said he has opposed the recommendation on behalf of his party saying that this route will not be viable for the country. But he did not give any 'note of dissent' at the meeting.

On easing traffic congestion in the city, the standing committee asked the authority concerned to take action to remove all vehicles aged twenty years and more from the city streets.

It also asked to remove unnecessary speed breakers from the capital as those sometimes create tailback the busy and crowded city.

"Benapole-Dhaka-Tamabil and Banglabandha-Dhaka-Tamabil routes will be most suitable routes to link Asian Highway. Considering trade, commerce and tourism, the committee after elaborate discussion recommended these two
