Lawmakers' bid to be adviser dashed again

House passes city corporation bill, rejects JS body's recommendation

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Parliament yesterday passed the local government (city corporations) bill rejecting a House body's recommendation for making MPs advisers to the municipalities in their constituencies.

The House also did not accept recommendation of the parliamentary body for creating posts of two deputy mayors in each city corporation.

The parliamentary standing committee on LGRD and cooperatives ministry in its scrutiny report on the bill made the recommendations.

Earlier on September 14, parliament passed the local government (municipality) bill rejecting the same House body's recommendation for making MPs advisers to the municipalities in their constituencies.

The government also mulls bringing amendment to the upazila parishad act to drop a provision that made MPs advisers to the parishads in their constituencies.

Making MPs advisers to different local government bodies triggered widespread criticism and annoyed the elected representatives to those bodies.

The newly elected chairmen and vice chairmen of upazila parishads have been persistently criticising the government for making lawmakers advisers to the parishads which are yet to begin functioning properly. They also threatened to launch movement to force the government to amend the law.

Finally, government policymakers seem to have changed their stance and responded to the demand for freeing the local government bodies from the control of MPs.

LGRD and Cooperatives Minister Syed Ashrafur Islam yesterday proposed passage of the local government (city corporation) bill.

Yet another giraffe dies

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The death of rare animals at Dhaka Zoo seems never ending due to poor management of the zoo.

Another giraffe died yesterday morning reducing the total number of giraffes at the zoo to two. This was the third consecutive death of giraffe after two others died on September 8 and 30 after suffering from "dehydration".

The zoo authorities formed several probe committees and transferred and sacked zoo officials following the death incidents but nothing could stop unnatural deaths of precious animals.

Seasonal sicknesses strike

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The seasonal illnesses like viral fever, dengue, typhoid, respiratory tract infections and jaundice with sore throat and running nose have been spreading fast in different parts of the city for over a month.

The city's public and private hospitals are witnessing an increased number of dengue, typhoid, RTI and jaundice patients. Private practitioners are also getting a large number of such patients.

Medical experts said frequent changes in weather and taking contaminated water are main reasons for the occurrence of such seasonal illnesses.

Some 319 people have been diagnosed with dengue fever till yesterday, chief entomologist of Dhaka City Corporation (DCC) Naseem-Us-Seraj told The Daily Star.

The patients with dengue fever, a viral disease transmitted by Aedes mosquito, could be increased now though generally it reduces during this time (September-October), he said.

Residents of Dhanmondi, Kalabagan, Central Road, Minto Road, Siddeswari, Muhammadpur, Ganderia and Mirpur areas are falling victim to dengue virus, said the DCC official.

At least 37 patients from outside of Dhaka got admitted to the city's different hospitals in last week, he informed.

A total of 300 dengue patients have been admitted to the city hospitals since June to September, said the control room of the directorate general of health services.

More than 80 percent of the child patients at the Dhaka Shishu Hospital are suffering from viral fever, dengue, RTI, typhoid while others from diarrhoea, said a resident physician of the hospital.
