Poet Sufia Kamal's 10th death anniversary today

Today marks Poet Sufia Kamal's (1911-1999) 10th death anniversary. The poet, writer, organiser and women's rights activist was born to a conservative Muslim family in Barisal. When she died in 1999, she was buried with full state honour, the first woman in Bangladesh to receive this tribute.

Her first short story "Shainik Bodhu" was published in 1923. Sufia Kamal's first poem, "Bashanti" was published in Saogat in 1926. Kamal was the first Bengali Muslim female to be a member of the Indian Women's Federation.

Kamal's literary career took off after her first poetry publication. Her first book of poems "Sanjher Maya" came out in 1938. In 1937, she published her first collection of short stories "Keyar Kanta".

Sufia Kamal

Though she called herself a romantic poet, her work more and more reflected the struggles to preserve the Bengali language and culture. Later in life, she made women's rights her top priority.

In 1947, when Shaptahik Begum was first published, Sufia Kamal became its editor. In October that year, after the partition of India, she came to Dhaka. In 1961, when the Pakistani government banned Rabindra Sangeet, she became involved in the movement that ensued.

The founder president of Chhayanaut died on November 20, 1999. To mark her death anniversary, Chhayanaut has arranged a commemorative programme this evening at 6 pm.

Madhuri Dixit to play Indira Gandhi?

Madhuri Dixit is set to play late Prime Minister Indira Gandhi in a new film, "Mother: The Indira Gandhi Story", it has emerged.

Filmmaker Krishna Shah will direct the film, which will be released in two parts. The first part will come up at the end of 2011 and part two about seven or eight months later.

Shah mentioned that the film would be multilingual. "It will be in Hinglish," Variety quoted him as saying. He added, "It's such an exciting, dramatic story. The canvas of her life is too big to be contained in one film." The filming is set to kick start in India in April next year.

Some parts of the film will also be shot in the US, UK and Russia. Shah has apparently been writing the script for 23 years. When asked about the budget he replied: "It's bigger than 'Paranormal Activity' and less than 'Avatar'."

Theatre troupe Desh Natak staged "Bhakto"-- an adaptation of Henrik Ibsen's "Brand"-- at the Experimental Theatre Hall, Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy on November 18. The show was part of the ongoing International Ibsen Seminar and Theatre Festival. Shamsul Alam Bakul was the director of the play. "Bhakto" narrates the story of the population of a low land, where a spiritual person, Bhakto, appears to disseminate sacred knowledge. To achieve that goal, he demands purification of souls through sacrifices. In the final act, however, he fails to understand the people.
