8 killed in US missile strike in Pakistan

Three cops killed by bomb while militants gun down 5 Pak soldiers

A suspected US missile strike killed at least eight militants yesterday in northwestern Pakistan, officials said, the second attack this week in an area believed to hold many insurgents who fled from an army offensive elsewhere in the Afghan border region.

Separately, three policemen were killed by bomb blasts while five Pakistani soldiers were reported dead in clashes late Thursday in an area previously cleared by the army, demonstrating the difficulty of containing the militants.

A US drone fired two missiles at a compound being used by suspected Taliban militants in a village near Mir Ali in North Waziristan, according to two intelligence officials who spoke on condition of anonymity because they weren't authorised to release the information.

The compound was destroyed and eight bodies were pulled from the rubble, the officials said, adding that two other suspected militants were wounded.

The targeted compound in the village of Shakhwadi was owned by two brothers, and Taliban militants were frequently seen visiting the building, which was cordoned off after the missile strike, the officials said.

Another suspected US missile strike killed three militants and wounded four just after midnight Thursday in Shana Khunwara village in North Waziristan, officials said.

Underlining their resilience, officials said five Pakistani troops and six militants were killed in a gun battle at a security outpost in the Bajur tribal region the site of a military campaign against Taliban militants that ended with a declaration of victory in March.

Three police officers were killed and four others wounded when a remote-controlled bomb destroyed their vehicle in Peshawar early Friday, said city police Chief Liaquat Ali Khan.

The bomb packed with steel pellets tore through a Pakistani police vehicle on the outskirts of the northwestern city of Peshawar early Friday, killing three policemen, officials said.

It was the second attack in Peshawar in less than 24 hours, after a suicide bomber blew himself up outside a court building on Thursday, killing 20 people.

Top militants killed in Philippines

AFP, Zamboanga

Philippine troops have killed one of the top commanders of the al Qaeda-linked Abu Sayyaf group, the military said yesterday.

The death of the Islamist militant, Abdulla Ajijul, in a special operation on the southern island of Basilan Thursday is "a significant gain" in Manila's anti-terrorism campaign, regional military spokesman Major David Montiveros said.

"He was an ASG (Abu Sayyaf Group) urban terrorist leader ... responsible for kidnapping and bombing incidents in the area," Montiveros said.

Pakistan nets UN attack suspect

Pakistan police said Friday they were holding a suspect in connection with a suicide attack at a UN office last month and a string of other bombings in the capital Islamabad.

"Five blasts took place in Islamabad in 2009, four of them have been investigated and he is involved in all four of those blasts," Islamabad police chief Kalim Imam told a press conference.

The Captain Khlebnikov icebreaker got stuck in sea ice earlier this week near Snow Hill Island in the Weddell Sea. Officials have said that people onboard weren't in any danger.

CIA chief holds talks with PM in Pakistan

AFP, Islamabad

CIA chief Leon Panetta yesterday held talks in Pakistan and found agreement on intelligence cooperation as President Barack Obama nears a decision on troop deployments to Afghanistan, Islamabad said.

Panetta held talks with Prime Minister Yousuf Raza Gilani on Washington's policy review in Afghanistan, said the premier's office in a brief statement.

It was his second visit since taking office this year and comes a week after US National Security Adviser James Jones held similar talks in Pakistan.

Panetta and Gilani agreed on "operational functioning between the two militaries and intelligence agencies" to eliminate the terror threat, it said.

The US embassy was not immediately reachable for comment.

Obama has said he is weeks away from unveiling a long-awaited war strategy review in neighbouring Afghanistan, where commanders have warned the conflict will be lost without an extra 40,000 US troops.

He has reportedly increased pressure on Islamabad to fight not just militants who attack within Pakistan, but those using Pakistan as a base from which to fight the Kabul government and Western troops in Afghanistan.

Some Pakistani officials have expressed concern that any major US troop increase in Afghanistan could push Taliban fighters into Pakistan.

Yet Islamabad has warned against any precipitous US troop drawdown in case Afghan fighters pour across the border, exacerbating the rising security problems Pakistan has faced since the 2001 US-led invasion of Afghanistan.

Earlier on Friday, a US missile attack killed eight people, including foreign militants, in Pakistan's lawless tribal belt on the Afghan border, the second such attack in two days, Pakistani security officials said.

Six MPs and peers face fraud charges in UK expenses scandal

ANI, London

At least six British MPs and peers may face criminal charges of fraud in the abuse of the Parliamentary expenses system following investigations by Scotland Yard.

According to a report, the charges are against Labour MPs Elliot Morley, David Chaytor and Jim Devine, and peers Baroness Uddin, Lord Hanningfield and Lord Clarke of Hampstead.

The MPs are likely to face court on counts of fraud, for which the maximum sentence is 10 years, or false accounting, for which the maximum penalty is up to seven years, The Telegraph reported.

Keir Starmer, the Director of Public Prosecutions, is expected to make a decision on whether to prosecute the politicians before the General Election in January.

The report further said that a team of detectives, assessing and investigating cases for the past five months since disclosure of the widespread abuse of parliamentary allowances, is on the verge of finalising their files on the MPs.

Resumption of Indo-Pak talks very important

Says Hillary Clinton

ANI, Washington

Stressing that pending issues between India and Pakistan should be resolved amicably by both countries, US Secretary of State Hillary Clinton has said that a resumption of bilateral talks is very important.

In an interview with the BBC, the transcripts of which were released by the State Department here, Hillary said Washington is encouraging both countries to resume talks, which were discontinued after the 26/11 Mumbai terror attacks.

"We are encouraging them (India and Pakistan) to get back into dialogue. We think that (dialogue) is important. But with respect to any resolution, that's up to them," Hillary said in response to a query about whether the Obama administration is looking to play a part in the Kashmir issue.

"Well, we have encouraged both countries to resume a dialogue that they were engaged in, which came to a halt and yet holds a lot of promise. They had made progress, I am told, in sorting through some of the longstanding difficulties they face, and most particularly the status of Kashmir," she added.

Hillary underlined it was important to resolve pending issues, as Washington believes it should be done by the two states only.

"But it is clear that any solution has to come from the two countries themselves," she said.

India's official position is that Kashmir is an 'integral part' of India, while Pakistan maintains that Kashmir is a disputed territory whose final status must be determined by the people of the region and under the UN resolutions of 1948 and 1949.

Sleep 'boosts memory'

ANI, Washington

For anyone trying to remember a new skill, sleeping on it may be a good advice, says a new study.

Scientists carried out an experiment in which sleeping volunteers were played sounds associated with a memorised task.

When they awoke, they performed better in the tests, showing their memories had been reinforced.

The results add to growing evidence that sleep is important to memory processing. Prior to their naps, the 12 study participants were taught to associate 50 images with random locations on a computer screen. Each image, for instance a shattering wine glass, was paired with a corresponding sound played over a loudspeaker.

After a number of repeated trials the volunteers became skilled at dragging the images to their assigned places. Next, participants were allowed to doze off in a quiet darkened room, and sounds corresponding to 25 of the images were played without them waking up.
