When dancing bells conjure magic

Shadhona holds recital at Chhayanaut

Young dancers in the "U Urban I" presentation.

A CORRESPONDENT
 Shadhona, a centre for advancement of South Asian dance and music, presented the second instalment of "Nupur Bejey Jai" (a bi-monthly dance performance) on January 14 at Chhayanaut Shangkriti Bhaban. Lubna Mariam, general secretary of Shadhona, said that her organisation hopes to make "Nupur Bejey Jai" a regular event. The first part of the programme featured a presentation titled "U Urban I". The presentation was an outcome of a workshop conducted by noted Indian dancer Urmimla Sarkar. About the presentation Sarkar said, "The workshop lasted 10 days. These talented young dancers only had 10 days to put up the performance you're going to witness today. This experience has been very inspiring." About the presentation highlighting contemporary dance, Sarkar said that viewers could interpret it in their own ways. "It depicts the hustle and bustle of city life that most of us are familiar with. Like for example, while crossing the street together at an intersection, everyone seems united. They move at the same time, in the same direction. However, they may not know each other and their gait might be very different. There might be one who is sad and one who is really excited," she said. "U Urban I" began with an alarm going off that awakened the dancers. Through expressions and movement, the young dancers portrayed how the diverse lives literally come together on the street. The spontaneity in their movements made someone in the audience exclaim "Excellent!" amidst the hushed auditorium.

The last sequence in the presentation had no background music. The dancers clapped rhythmically, and one after another went back to sleep. The alarm rang again, and the same hubbub followed, ending at a point when all dancers seemed engrossed in some distant elusive dream -- just like groups of urbanites pursuing their goals.

The latter segment of the programme featured Manipuri dance choreographed by Samina Hussain Prema. After "Prabandha Nartan", a spirited performance of "Pung Cholom" (traditional Manipuri drum) impressed the audience. The artiste who performed solo did not only play the drum but also danced along, as if celebrating with glee one of the many festivals of the Manipuris. Swirls, high jumps and the many other movements were the highlights.

"Shuka Sari Dwandwa" was next. The composition narrated the tiff between a shuka (parrot) and sari (she-parrot) regarding the greatness of Krishna and Radha.

"Nupur Bejey Jai" was supported by GMG Airlines and Desh TV was the media partner.

MTV announces global telethon to help Haiti victims

Wyclef Jean will join George Clooney and CNN's Anderson Cooper in hosting MTV Networks' "Hope for Haiti," the global telethon to air commercial-free across ABC, CBS, NBC, FOX, CNN, BET, the CW, HBO, MTV, VH1 and CMT on Friday, January 22, at 8 pm (ET/PT). The telethon will be hosted by Clooney in Los Angeles, Jean in New York and Cooper in Haiti. All donations will directly benefit Oxfam America, Partners in Health, Red Cross, UNICEF and Wyclef's Yele Haiti Foundation.

"Hope for Haiti" will feature performances and celebrity appearances to be announced in the coming days, as well as live news reports from CNN. "Hope for Haiti" will also be made available to MTV Networks International and CNN

International. Facebook and MySpace have signed on as official social-media partners to help steer viewers to the telethon and drive donations.

Yele Haiti has already raised $2 million through text-message donations, the organisation announced on Friday (January 15).

"This is apocalypse," Jean said about the destruction in his home country. "We spent the day picking up dead bodies, all day that's what we did. There's so much bodies in the streets that the morgues are filled up, the cemeteries are filled up."
