Memorial Hall, Library in honour of poet opened in Barisal

Commemorating 111th birth anniversary of Jibanananda

poet studied) campus, another programme featuring discussion and cultural function was jointly organised by Sangskriti Parishad, Brojomohon Theatre and Sculpture Movement Committee.

Abdullah Mahfuz presided over the programme. Professor Imanul Hakim, Quaiumuddin Ahmed and Robin Roy, among others, spoke at the discussion.

Jibanananda, best known as the poet of 'Ruposhi Bangla' is the creator of 'Banalota Sen'-- the unparalleled character embodying all facets of a Bengali beauty.

As a teacher of English in Barisal and Calcutta (now Kolkata), he was well read in Mallarme, Rimbaud, Valery, Pound, and Eliot. He was discontented with the conditions of urban life and often expressed a deeply tragic sensibility.

Speakers at the memorial discussion demanded implementation of the Dhanshiri River Eco Park project and excavation of Dhanshiri River, establishing museums, memorials and sculptures of the poet at places connected to his life, works and memories.

Born on February 17, 1899, Jibanananda Das is arguably the most influential romantic Bengali poet of the post-Tagore era. He died in a road accident on October 22, 1954 in Calcutta.

Boi Mela: A launching pad for up and coming writers

A CORRESPONDENT

For aspiring writers the Ekushey Book Fair has always been a great stepping-stone. The fair has always provided them with opportunities to launch their works.

At this year's book fair, three new works by upcoming writer Md. Shahadat Hossain Shohag have been released.

The books are "Kana Mama Montu" (a mystery for adolescents), "Dhongshobaaz" (an adventure) and "Shankho Shomudrey Otu" (sequel to his debut novel "Barsha Kajol Chokhey", launched at the 2009 Ekushey Book Fair).

Speaking on his books, Shohag, who is also a banker, said, "It was the success of 'Barsha Kajol Chokhey', which inspired me to pursue writing seriously." At last year's book fair "Barsha Kajol Chokhey" received a good response, selling up to ten editions.

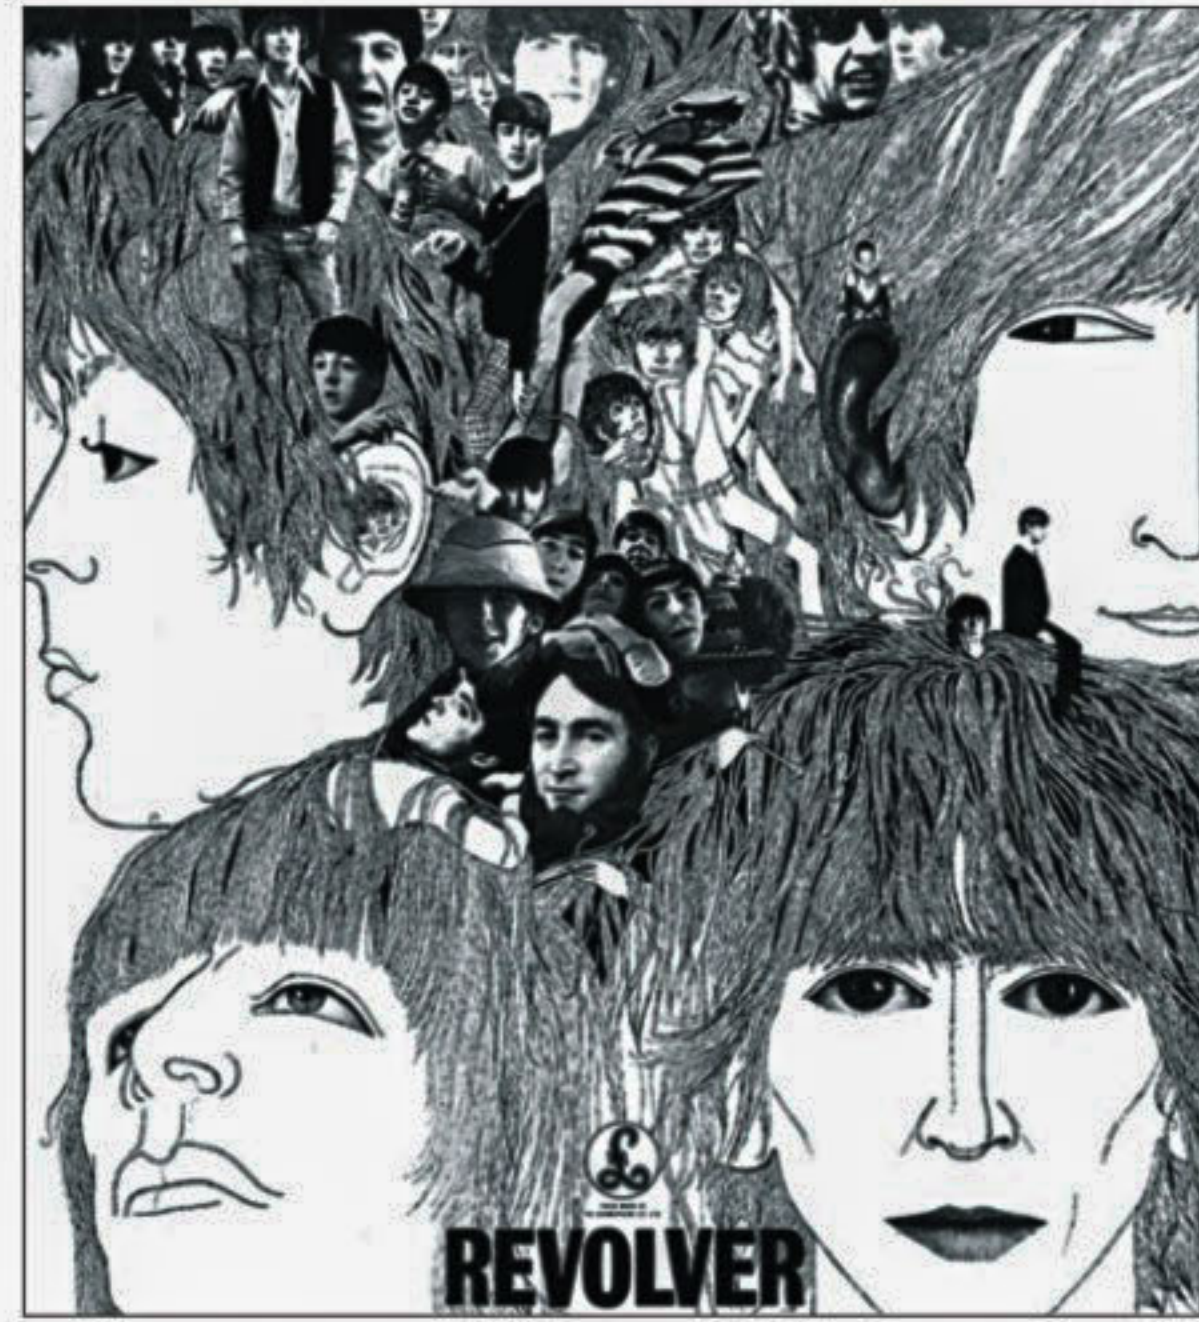

In the sequel, the readers will get to know more about 'Atu' -- the protagonist of "Barsha Kajol Chokhey" -- and his latest journey, published by Shikha Prokashoni.

In his own words "without writing my life seems incomplete."

Vatican's Top 10 list

So many records, so little time. But the Vatican can help. The official newspaper of the Holy See, L'Osservatore Romano, has published what it called a "semi-serious" guide to the Top 10 pop albums of all time.

In first place was the Beatles' "Revolver". The next was "If I Could Only Remember My Name," David Crosby's first solo album, followed by Pink Floyd's "Dark Side of the Moon."

The newspaper published its list on last Saturday, before the start of the San Remo festival, an over-the-top Italian competition of pop music that is widely watched on television.

The rest of the list: "Rumors" by Fleetwood Mac; "The Nightfly" by Donald Fagen of Steely Dan; "Thriller" by Michael Jackson; Paul Simon's "Graceland"; "Achtung Baby" by U2; "(What's the Story) Morning Glory" by Oasis; and Carlos Santana's "Supernatural".

The writers of the article ended with a shot at Bob Dylan, praising his "great poetic vein" but saying he was excluded from the list for a major fault: paving the way for generations of dilettante singer-songwriters who have "harshly tested the ears and patience of listeners, thinking that their tortured meanderings might interest somebody."
