Call to stamp out fundamentalism

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Members of Sampradayikata - Jangbad Birodhi Mancha, a platform against communalism, yesterday urged countrymen to uproot fundamentalism and Islamist militancy from the country.

Addressing a public gathering at Mukhtang in the capital, they demanded ban on religion-based politics, reinstatement of the constitution of 1972 and immediate trail of the war criminals.

It would create avenues of socio-economic growth for the country, they pointed out.

The speakers warned that the recent killing in Rajshahi University by Shibir and the atrocities in Chittagong Hill Tracts are linked together. It is actually a manifestation that the fundamentalist forces are very much active and they are hatching conspiracy to unsettle the state.

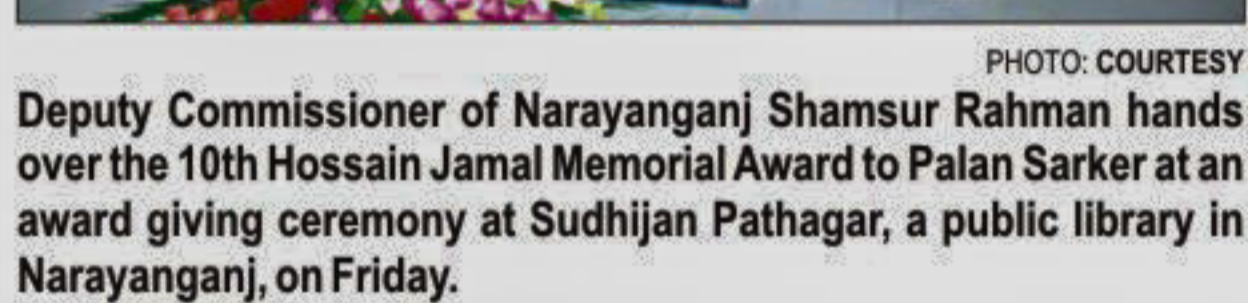

They also demanded immediate trial of the people responsible for Ramna Botomul and Udichi bomb blasts.

Lawmaker Mahbul Alam Hanif, joint general secretary of Bangladesh Awami League (AL), said fundamentalism and Islamic militancy were backed by two political parties, BNP and Jamat.

Lawmaker Fazole Hossain Badsha said even though they are no longer in power they are still conspiring. Mentioning recent atrocities by Shibir in Rajshahi University he said, these are manifestation of such conspiracy. He warned Jamat-BNP that any effort to spoil the recent democratic movement would be confronted.

Ajoy Roy, coordinator of the platform, said if these forces cannot be uprooted the country awaits another disaster.

Pankaj Bhattacharya, presidium member of Gono Forum, Rokeya Kabir, executive director of Nari Pragati Sangha, Mahmuda Imam, executive director of Karmojibi Nari, Mukul Chowdhury, vice president of AL Dhaka Committee, Lelin Chowdhury, general secretary of Kendriya Khelaghar, Ziauddin Tareq Ali, vice president of Sammilita Samajik Andolon, Dr Nur Mohammad Talukdar, general secretary of Bangladesh College-University Teachers' Association, Atiur Rahman, joint general secretary of Bangladesh Teachers' Association, also spoke.

Training on primary eye care held

METRO DESK

With a view to raising awareness to eradicate avoidable blindness and prevent common eye diseases, Dhaka Urban Comprehensive Eye Care Project (DUCECP) and Star Campus, a weekly supplement of The Daily Star, jointly organised a training session on primary eye care at a city conference centre yesterday.

University students and team members from Star Campus were present at the programme to gain knowledge and exchange their views on avoidable blindness and ways to keep eyes healthy, says a press release.

DUCECP has set a target to eliminate the treatable cause of blindness (such as cataract) and ensure other primary eye care services like refractive error, low vision in Dhaka city at minimum to free of cost.

Specially designed for the urban poor, the project has already established a link with the community-based organisations (CBOs) providing primary healthcare services within the project area and other government and NGO health service providers to ensure greater utilisation of static eye health facilities throughout the city.

The speakers at the training said that awareness on primary eye care is extremely low in the community and many people become blind simply because of not knowing the fact that there is a free to minimum cost treatment.

Star Campus has come forward to fill the gap and aid DUCECP project's awareness campaign. Participants of the training session vowed to disseminate the relevant information among community people.

Under this project, cataract, dacryocystitis (infection of the lacrimal gland) and other treatment (specially spectacles) for refractive error is given free of cost for extreme poor. Since its beginning in October 2008, 9500 people have got their sight restored after successful cataract surgery.

The project is funded mostly by the Standard Chartered Bank's seeing is believing (SiB) initiative and Sightsavers International, a UK-based development organisation.

M Nurun Nabi, project coordinator, was the chief facilitator while Dr Rajib Hossain assisted as co-facilitator.

Double shifts in some govt schools in Rajshahi from next year

BSS, Rajshahi

Mayor of Rajshahi AHM Khairuzzaman Lito has said steps have been taken to launch double shifts in the city's quality government high schools in the coming year to ease admission crisis.

Rajshahi City Corporation is also going to start five educational institutes with quality teachers and the number of institutions would be increased in phases, he said.

Mayor Lito said this while addressing the SEF Foundation Scholarship-2009 distribution ceremony hosted by Shaheen Education Family at Zila Parishad Auditorium as the chief guest.

Lito said the RCC has also a plan to launch English medium school in addition to the Bangla medium in the city so that students can cope with the tough competition at home and abroad.

He also said that many educated people are not interested to go abroad due to their weakness in English.

Chairman of the Foundation Masudul Amin Shaheen presided over the ceremony. Industrialist Monzur Faruque Chowdhury and Principal of Bangabandhu Degree College Sheikh Lutfur Rahman Babu also spoke.
