Of national movements and sense of identity

Proshanta Karmakar's solo exhibition

Artworks by the artist.

A CORRESPONDENT
 Liberation War and Language Movement are the main themes of the current exhibition featuring Proshanta Karmakar Buddha's artworks. Karmakar is mainly a printmaker (mainly etching). In recent times, he has developed his skills in painting (particularly acrylic). The medium provides a spontaneous and alluring look to his creations. The artist is having a solo painting exhibition at Nordic Club, Gulshan-2. Cruelty of war made a major impact on Karmakar's psyche. People dying while fighting for an independent Bangladesh in 1971 has been depicted in several of his paintings. While the war killed many, others lost their near and dear ones, and many were left permanently wounded -- physically and psychologically. As a painter, Karmakar wanted to document the pain, anguish and struggles of the people on his canvas. The artist identifies himself with the cultural heritage of the country. Liberation War and the valiant expressions of the freedom fighters have been articulated in his works remarkably. Fearless force in the form of horses, bold eyes and Bengali letters are recurring themes in his paintings. His mode of expression is realistic and movement of the subjects is the key element in his works. Another theme of the paintings at the exhibition is the Language Movement. Shaheed Minar, blazing sun, public demonstrations make the works impressive and engaging. His paintings take the viewers back to the nation's glorious past. Use of bright colours is another noticeable feature of Karmakar's paintings. The exhibition ends on March 31.

Spring festival by Shurbihar

A CORRESPONDENT

Cultural organisation Shurbihar arranged a programme to celebrate the season of spring at the auditorium of National Music and Dance Centre, Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy on March 13.

Artist Hashem Khan, singer Samina Chowdhury and director general of BTV Sheikh Riazuddin Badshah were special guests at the programme.

The programme included speeches by the guests, a prize distribution ceremony for the students of Shurbihar and a cultural programme.

In her speech, Samina pointed out that being a good human being is a corollary of the continuous nourishment of our own culture, while artist Hashem Khan spoke on the education policy and cultural values.

"The more we have cultural activities, the more refined our society will be," said Khan.

The guests handed over prizes to the winning students of Shurbihar in the categories of painting and music. The theme of both categories was 'Spring.'

Kazi Samiul Islam, Ahona Mandol, Arnika Tahsin Barsha, Chishti Sababa Monir, Amrin Shahriar, Yasin Shahriar, Nuzhat Chowdhury and Nashita Hakim won prizes in painting while Ilahe Ahmed, Nidhi Biswas, Meghla Das, Hasan Sarwar, Nashita Hasan and Chowdhury Mehnaz Afreen bagged awards in music.

Later a cultural programme, featuring recitation and dance performances, was held at the venue. Students and teachers of Shurbihar performed Rabindra Sangeet, Nazrul Sangeet, an Atul Prasad number, folk and adhunik songs.

The highlight of the day was a rendition of a short khayal on "Raaga Emon" by the director of Shurbihar, Anima Roy.
