Winds of Change and some Change Makers

Star Campus Desk

HISTORICALLY speaking, the youth of Bangladesh have always played strong role in the socio-economic transformation of the country. Whether it was the active participation of students in the war of Liberation in 1971 or the voluntary initiatives taken by students during the flood of 1988, the student community has always been present every time Bangladesh needed them. Since university is the pinnacle of a student's life, through proper education that stretches beyond the course curriculum, universities can further groom the youth of the country. In this regard, teachers can play a pivotal role.
