A gamut of themes, styles and hues

Group art exhibition at National Museum

TAKIR HOSSAIN

National Museum in Dhaka is holding a group art exhibition at its Nalini Kanta Bhattachali Gallery. The exhibition is a part of the International Museum Day celebration and features works of acclaimed and promising Bangladeshi painters. Some works of artists from overseas are also on display. The displayed works--on a range of themes and in several mediums--are part of the museum's

AMINUL ISLAM

At the exhibition, Aminul Islam's works demonstrates his concept of abstract art inspired by the early twentieth century metaphysical theories. His remarkable compositions have made him one of the most influential artists in the local art scene during the late '60s. His non-objective language, tries to reconcile the clarity of pure abstraction with more expressive and colourful forms.

Mohammad Kibria is known for his compositions and the artist works in several mediums, applying different techniques. His etching at the exhibition denotes a big flat space with some dotted minute forms. The painter has simplified and enhanced the abstract image that constructs a visual reference to his memories. In his work, memory is the luminosity and it creates a unique journey.

Murtaja Baseer's "The Wing" is a notable series of paintings. At the exhibition, two paintings from the series are on display. The paintings highlight bright colours with big forms. The surface appears sooth and there's a lucid quality to it. The veteran artist is continuing the series.

"The Revolt of Bengal," "The Speech of March 7," "The River of '71" and "The Letter of '71" are some of Hasmen Khan's series on the Liberation War. At the exhibition, his "Razakar-der Talika" reveals Bangla alphabets and bold brushstrokes. Vibrant colours, dense textures and vague forms are recurrent in his works.

Monirul Islam as an artist is easily recognised as he can translate life's diverse dimensions with his singular style, techniques and innovations into captivating works, where colours, lines, textures and forms blend in synchronisation. His controls his medium and his technique with a certain mastery. His works express a special meaning, which has aesthetic and stylistic uniqueness.

Nasim Ahmed Nadvi's featured work is all about straight black lines. Black is always predominant trait of his works but at times the painter does bring in light shades. The geometrical structure of his painting is not dictated by mathematical laws but by his own style.

Shajahan Ahmed Bikash is well known for his portraits. A portrait of Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman by Bikash is part of the exhibition. Bikash's technical mastery and fascination with capturing the tiniest details have helped him to create realistic portraits.

Bangladeshi artist Intiaj Islam Shohag now lives and works in Paris. A narrative painter, his works highlight fragments. One of his works from his studying period, delineating an abandoned car, is included in the display. The realistic work (oil) was done in 1997.

Neemi Dewan's "Green Horizon" shows two indigenous girls in a sombre mood. The highpoints of the work are warm textures and use of space.

The exhibition ends today.

Desi flavour at FIFA World Cup 2010

Salim (right) and Sulaiman.

It is like a dream come true for the musician brothers, Salim-Sulaiman and another reason for Bollywood to be proud of its musicians.

The music director duo has composed the anthem for FIFA World Cup 2010. The two brothers are doing something that no other South Asian has had a chance to do. And above all, the two are also going to open and close the tournament.

The football mega battle is about to take place from June 11 and it will go on for a month before closing in on July 11. The tournament is being held in South Africa.

R&B artist Loyiso Vincent Bala along with Kenyan singer Eric Wainanjer will perform alongside Salim-Sulaiman.

Salim-Sulaiman became famous after composing for the hit Hindi movie, "Chak De! India" The songs they composed had become like an anthem for the T20 Indian team.

Sound Of Music: A music school with a difference

Sound Of Music, a music school in Gulshan, Dhaka, promises individual attention to each student. The school provides individual tuition to each student by experienced teachers, says a press release.

Though music is the highlight of the school's curriculum, it also offers painting and dance lessons. Among the teachers are Dr. Ruposhi (violin), Dr. Julia (piano), Emelia (piano), Kaartik (guitar), Mahfuz Maya (western vocal), Majed (western dance) and Zeba (painting).

The school aims to generate more interest in music and groom young talents. On May 28, students of the school staged a recital.
