

WORKING WOMEN OF DHAKA

Women are struggling hard to be on a par with men in all sectors. They are taking up ever newer challenges, some of which are quite risky. They are working in electric light bulb factories and lathe workshops, operating blowtorches, or selling vegetables and betel leaves on streets. But discrimination still persists. Many working women allege that though they work as hard as males, many of them do not get equal wages.

Photo: ANISUR RAHMAN

