Oil up in Asia

Oil prices rose in Asian trade on Monday, buoyed by Federal Reserve chairman Ben Bernanke's reassurances on the US economy and a scintillating opening by Japanese stocks, analysts said.

New York's main crude light sweet crude for delivery in October, gained 21 cents to 75.38 dollars a barrel.

Brent North Sea crude for delivery in October advanced 18 cents to 76.83 dollars.

The Tokyo bourse's

hot start to the week spurred on oil markets, which were also calmed by Bernanke's assurances Friday that a pickup in the US economy in 2011 was in sight, analysts said.

International Market

The yen nudged back towards a 15-year high against the dollar on Tuesday as investors shrugged off the Bank of Japan's latest policy easing, betting instead on more yen gains that would keep the threat of intervention alive.

With mounting US economic worries likely to keep investors away from riskier assets such as stocks and high-yielding currencies, the market is likely to push up the low-yielding yen. That could eventually prompt Japan to sell its currency in the markets for the first time in more than six years.
