REINSURERS float $20b plan for BP-type blowout potential liability looked like being almost limitless, there was even talk that BP might need state support to avert bankruptcy.

By comparison, British oil group BP estimates that the direct civil costs of dealing with the fatal explosion of its Deepwater Horizon rig in the Gulf of Mexico and ensuing pollution could amount to about 32 billion dollars (24.8 billion euros).

Spain's Gamesa, one of the world's top wind turbine manufacturers, said Tuesday it will triple its total investment in China by 2012 to meet rising demand for clean energy in the Asian country.

The company has invested a total of 42 million euros ($54 million dollars) on facilities in China and plans to invest over 90 million euros between 2010-12, bringing its cumulative investment in the country to over 130 million euros, it said in a statement.

New York's main contract, light sweet crude for October delivery, slipped six cents to $77.13 a barrel.

Spanish Gamesa to triple China investments

Gamesa forecasts China will account for over 30 percent of total sales compared to 15 percent last year.

"One of Gamesa's goals is to cement its position as one of the top five players in the Chinese wind energy industry," Gamesa chairman Jorge Calvet said in the statement.

China wants renewable energy like wind to meet 15 percent of its energy needs by 2020, double its share in 2005, as it seeks to rein in emissions that have made its cities among the smoggiest on Earth.
