Message from
Vice Chancellor

I heartily congratulate the graduating students of BBA 14th, MBA 42nd and EMBA 3rd batch in their graduation from the Institute of Business Administration, University of Dhaka.

Today I have the great pleasure of being part of this wonderful occasion. It is a day that has been years in the making, a day which is the realization of your families', your loved ones' and your own hopes and dreams. Today you graduate.

A proper graduate is not just a student who only excels academically. He or she is someone who is well rounded in his or her achievements, is progressive-minded and caring, and is willing to do something not just for personal gain but for those around him or her. That is what the students of this Institute are so well at doing: finding the right balance between their personal gains and the demands society and this country puts on them. The reason IBA is such an influential provider of higher education is simply because of the success of the students who go out into the world and dare to dream and do wonderful things. The University of Dhaka is proud to have such an Institute within its family and commends the educators and facilitators of IBA for its noteworthy work.

That is why today is a wonderful occasion for the educators as well. Just like their parents, the educators feel a magnificent sense of pride to see the potential, the talent, the maturity, the enthusiasm and the optimism that these graduates have.

Each one of us is born with the seeds of success. Our parents, our environment and university, plant the seeds and nurture and nourish each one of us until we develop into that special someone who can compete with anybody, anywhere, at any level. The certificate the graduates receive today should not be thought of as a reward, but rather an opportunity, a commitment, an obligation to go forward and continue the life-long process of learning.

I congratulate the graduates once again for their achievements and wish them the very best for their future endeavors.
